City may put BART garage at Plaza

A proposal to put a garage on the southeast corner of the shopping center would also include commercial space at ground level

By J.R. Deaton
STAFF WRITER

EL CERRITO — The City Council got an update about efforts to build a Measure C parking garage serving the Plaza BART and passed a motion that, in the words of Mayor Larry Damon, encouraged the garage subcommittee to "keep on keeping on." Hopes for the Measure C garage in the city have stalled for years and some worry that it may eventually be a matter of "use it or lose it" when it comes to the approximately $6 million in funds approved by county voters in 1988.

The city is about half way through a two-year period that the Contra Costa Transit Authority, the organization that controls Measure C funds, gave it to come up with a BART parking garage plan.

The current plan is to build a parking structure in the southeast corner of the Plaza shopping center on property owned by center co-owner Regency Centers. El Cerrito hopes that negotiations will lead to Regency deeding about an acre of its site to the city for the BART garage. In exchange the city would allow Regency to develop the rest of the 5-acre site, possibly with apartments or condominiums.

"They'll give us the land in exchange for more development allowed on that property," Jill Kaimach, the city's community development director, said on Wednesday. "So if we allow them to put in high-density residential, they will get enough profit off of that land to give us the acre we need for the BART parking garage."

City planning officials and members of a year-old parking garage subcommittee that includes council members Gina Brusatori and Kathleen Perkaa have had numerous meetings with Regency, other potential site developers and agencies such as BART, the West Contra Costa Transportation Advisory Committee and CCTA.

The subcommittee said in a presentation to the council that it has studied parking designs in combinations with various types of development, including mostly residential and retail uses. The plan is to build the garage on the site, charge for parking, and use profits to fund maintenance of the garage and a shuttle system that would bring patrons to BART.

The subcommittee prefers a "mix of development" of hotel and retail uses, Keimach said. Retail uses would bring in sales tax for the city and hotel uses would bring in revenue from a transit occupancy tax charged to motels. Brusatori said the motel chain "has intended Stay America has a strong interest" in locating in El Cerrito and that this would mean more than $300,000 a year for the city in transit occupancy

ARTISTS, PUBLIC OFFICIALS and community members mingled at Wednesday's grand opening unveiling the refurbished Canyon Trail Park clubhouse that will serve as El Cerrito's new art center.

El Cerrito dedicates new art center

By J.R. Deaton

EL CERRITO — The mayor cut a big ribbon with a pair of giant golden scissors and did some speechifying, and there were plenty of smiles, food, drink, goodies, good music and good cheer at Wednesday's grand opening for the Canyon Trail Art Center.

"It took a lot of effort and an awful lot of people all working together, both citizens and council members and park and rec staff, to get this where it is today," Mayor Larry Damon said before he cut the grand-opening ribbon. "This is a major achievement, in my opinion, of how we can take a sow's ear and turn it into a silk purse."

The renovation of the former city clubhouse at 6757 Gatto St. at the east end of Canyon Trail Park cost about $245,000 said Monica Kortz, the city's recreation director. The project was funded as part of voter-approved Measure A, which also included funding for renovation of the Swim Center and clubhouse improvements at Harding, Huber and Poinsett parks. The Canyon Trail clubhouse was closed in 1997 after shifting of the building and cracks in the floor caused safety concerns.

City Councilwoman Gina Brusatori, who attended this week's grand opening, also attended the original clubhouse dedication. Brusatori recalled that when she was growing up in El Cerrito she went to El Monte School across the street from the park.

"One day, some years ago when we were little kids at El Monte, we finished up our school day and we came over here and we helped dedicate the opening of this clubhouse," she said. "There's a lot of history in this room and I'm so delighted that it's dedicated as an art center for kids of all ages."

The new art center will offer classes for children and adults. The city's fall/winter brochure lists classes in painting, figure drawing, glass fusing, cartooning, sculpture, jewelry making and more.

"It's exceptional," Kortz said about the renovated building. "The decking, the lighting, the color — it's light and airy. It's just a beautiful place to do art."

Festivities will provide peek at new high school

By Matt Petersen
STAFF WRITER

ALBANY — The city and greater community are invited to see and celebrate Albany High School's new digs at events today and tomorrow.

The school district will officially snip the ribbon and open the doors for the public to check out the new high school, the culmination of 10 years of planning, construction and community sacrifice.

"It's certainly a dream come true," said Assistant Superintendent Walter Wallace. "It's taken a lot of time and energy by many people in this district."

The festivities will kick off with a homecoming parade at 2 p.m., followed by varsity football at Cougar Field at 3:30 p.m. On Saturday, the school band will treat the crowd to the "The Star Spangled Banner," followed by an 11 a.m. ribbon cutting ceremony on the school's front steps. A public tour of the almost-finished facility will follow a few introductions and presentations, replete with food and various community booths scattered around the first floor.

Perhaps most impressive will be memorabilia donated for the weekend from Albany High alumni, linking the old with the new. On hand for nostalgia's sake will be old yearbooks, cheerleader outfits, vintage black-and-white photos and various sports uniforms.

School critics get OK to circulate recall petition

By Matt Petersen
STAFF REPORT

ALBANY — A petition to recall two school board members has been given the go-ahead by the Alameda County Registrar of Voters after numerous attempts to file. The next step is finding the 2,300-plus signatures needed to successfully unseat board President Marsha Skinner and board member Bill Cain by the Dec. 12 deadline set by the registrar's office.

Notices of the two recalls were delivered in person by resident John Kendall in June during the waning hours of the standoff between the teachers union and the board.

There had been speculation that public dissatisfaction over the impasse between the district and the Albany Teachers Association would subside after the tentative bargaining agreement was met with overwhelming approval by teachers at the beginning of the school year. But the recall effort persisted, and after seven unsuccessful attempts to gain approval by the registrar's office, Kendall and other board critics are now permitted to seek the 25 percent of registered voters needed to put the recall question on the ballot.

Kendall was unavailable for comment this week, but said in an interview last month that he isn't worried about gathering the signatures needed in light of the contract settlement. "If (the board doesn't) redo how they do that stuff, then it's going to blow up in their face."

Kendall contends the district engaged in bad faith bargaining with the teachers union during negotiations. He also cited a raucous December 2000 board meeting when members abruptly adjourned and left the room, and what he said was members sidestepping budgetary questions from the public during contract talks as the reasons for the recall.

Skinner will be vacating her seat after her term expires in 2002, and Cain stands to serve up until 2004.

Hail the king and queen

THIS YEAR'S SOLANO STROLL'S parade theme of "A Whole New Game" was made a reality at the Sept. 9 event by the Crestmont School Parent Co-op of Richmond. The school took first place for best parade entry by creating a full chess set complete with a truck decorated as a chess board filled with pawns, (children with head pieces), and giant puppets representing the white queen and black king. This is the third year in a row Crestmont has taken first prize. Runners up were the Canyon Community Stilting Group, East Bay Peace Action, Berkeley Ballet Theater and the Albany-Berkeley Chinese School. Prizes are Solano Avenue gift certificates which are good in over 30 businesses.

Chamber fund-raiser nears $5,500 mark

SEWALL GLINTERNICK
El Cerrito Chamber

This week — thanks to a substantial donation from the Mechanics Bank and contributions from several other members — the El Cerrito Chamber's unique "non-event" fund-raiser neared the $5,500 mark.

With more donations still expected to come in, the Chamber praised members who had already demonstrated their loyalty and their generosity by promptly responding to our plea for funds to replace the $8,000 in revenue lost because construction at the Plaza makes it impossible to hold our annual benefit October Fiesta this year.

With just a little over $2,500 left to go, I have every reason to believe that once everyone has had a chance to send in their contribution we'll get all we need to replenish our dwindling operating fund.

The current fund drive got underway several weeks ago when the Chamber sent out "invitations" to its members suggesting that they stay home from its "First Summer non-Dinner and non-Dance" and mail the Chamber a donation instead.

Members, apparently happy at the prospect of not having to dress up and attend another typical summer social affair, responded to this non-event invitation by contributing $5,450 to the organization's operating fund so far.

All members are urged to send in their donation as soon as possible, and the fund-raiser is also open to any member of the public interested in supporting the Chamber's efforts to improve the quality of life in El Cerrito.

Member plans workshop

The Summerville at El Cerrito Royale, long-time Chamber member located at 6510 Gladys St., will host a three-part workshop series on Elder Care and Family Care.

The series is free and open to the public, and workshop topics will be held on the following schedule:

Wednesday, Oct. 3, 1:30-4 p.m., Elder Care and Self Care Techniques For Families; Wednesday, Nov. 14, 1:30-4 p.m., Meeting the Emotional Needs of Families and Elders; Wednesday, Jan. 9, 2002, 1:30-4 p.m., Legal and Practical Guidelines for Elder Care.

Participants are invited to attend all or part of this free three workshop series. Refreshments and community resources will be provided at each workshop. To register or obtain information call Elder Abuse Prevention at 510-233-3427.

These workshops are made possible by a grant from the Board of Supervisors' Initiative on Zero Tolerance for Domestic Violence, and is being pre-

Residents becoming aware of overlooked waterways

Admirers of creeks have begun to look at them with new eyes

By Tom Lochner
STAFF WRITER

RICHMOND — Nine years ago Lisa Viani was walking near the former Lucky — now Albertson's — Supermarket at MacDonald Avenue and Key Boulevard when "this little waterway" caught her interest.

A friend told her, "this little thing, it's just a ditch," she recalled.

Viani, and some 800 fellow friends of Baxter Creek, would disagree.

"These 'little things' aren't little," Viani told some 30 people at the Richmond Museum of History on Sunday. "They're reminders of things that used to mean quite a lot to the people who lived along them and to the people who used them.

"We can bring them back a little bit to what they were, but at least to something that's considered valuable."

Viani's vignette on Baxter Creek, which flows from the El Cerrito Vista Golf Course in the El Cerrito hills through Richmond to San Francisco Bay by way of four city parks, came during her lecture and slide show, "The Creeks of Richmond: a Natural and Cultural History."

A Richmond resident and outreach coordinator for the Berkeley-based Urban Creeks Council of California, Viani co-founded Friends of Baxter Creek in 1997.

COUNCIL ELECTION FORUM

The Friends of Baxter Creek are holding a forum for El Cerrito and Richmond City Council candidates from 7-9 p.m. on Thursday, Oct. 11, at St. Luke's Methodist Church, 3200 Barrett Ave. in Richmond. All El Cerrito and Richmond candidates running for mayor and city council in the November election have been invited to participate. To date, 10 candidates have said they will attend. The Friends are currently soliciting questions from local citizens' groups and individuals. Moderator Maryann Aberg will ask these questions during the forum. E-mail questions to Lisa Owens-Viani at lowensvi@earthlink.net or call her at 510-237-7968. Forum details: Apple Szostak, 510-231-5778 or apple@aoinstitute.org.

Baxter Creek is a success story in progress following a pretty dismal four-century-long stretch for creeks and their denizens — animal and human — in the East Bay and elsewhere. Once flourishing riparian habitats that provided food, tools and craft materials for the indigenous Ohlone inhabitants, the creeks of Richmond and neighboring cities have been culverted, channeled through pipes, rerouted, dammed, polluted — and often forgotten. Wetlands along the creeks have been drained and paved, destroying the land's capacity to absorb excess rainwater.

"Now everything rushes off the surface," Viani said. That can cause flooding when creeks cannot handle the volume. Moreover, pollutants from the pavement go directly into the creeks without being filtered by vegetation, she said.

Viani reminisced about the time 400 years ago, when "grizzly bears roamed the East Bay hills; the Bay was full of whales."

The Richmond flatlands were moist grasslands; there were wildflower meadows; jackrabbits, gophers, grey foxes, black-tailed deer, mountain lions and many more birds than today.

EDDIE LEDESMA/STAFF

BAXTER CREEK runs next to the BART tracks for a short distance along Key Boulevard before disappearing at the Albertson's store at MacDonald Avenue in Richmond.

The Huchiun, as the local Ohlone tribe was called, hunted the sloughs and used the tule reeds for their boats. Willows abounded along the creeks. The Bay area, before fill was dumped along the shore to create more land, was "a lot more watery," a swampier, more humid environment, where "the transition between the land and the Bay was smoother."

East Bay residents today are showing greater appreciation for their creeks, as are cities and some developers, Viani said.

Schools are part of the restoration movement. Children of Stege Elementary School helped revegetate Baxter Creek's banks in Booker T. Anderson Park this year and last with plants they grew in the classroom.

About five years ago, volunteers helped "daylight" Baxter Creek in Poinsett Park in El Cerrito. Volunteers are restoring a stretch of the creek in Mira Vista Park in Richmond and hope to do the same in Canyon Trail Park in El Cerrito.

Mira Vista Elementary School will work on a wildlife habitat garden project with several environmental groups this fall, Viani said.

This week, the Urban Creeks Council and the city of San Pablo will begin restoring a bank of San Pablo Creek in Kennedy Plaza that gave way during the 1997-98 El Niño winter, Viani said.

The East Bay, known as one of the Bay Area's last bastions of affordable housing, saw the nation's biggest jump in rents this past year.

The average income needed to pay rent for a two-bedroom apartment in Alameda and Contra Costa counties rose by more than 25 percent, according to a nationwide housing report released Tuesday.

On the whole, the Bay Area remains the most expensive place in the nation for rental housing, found the report titled "Out of Reach, America's Growing Wage-Rent Disparity" released by the nonprofit advocacy group the National Low Income Housing Coalition.

Local housing experts fear soaring rents are pushing low-income families out of affordable neighborhoods in the East Bay that have long offered people shelter from the region's spiraling housing costs.

That trend is happening in formerly affordable neighborhoods around the nation, said Jennifer Twombly, research director with the Washington, D.C.-based coalition.

"We've seen a lot more gentrification, especially in urban areas," Twombly said. "As transportation has ground to a halt in a lot of suburban areas, people are willing to move back into the cities.

"Unfortunately, that has the unintended consequence of driving low-income people out of their neighborhoods."

Three of the four most-expensive metropolitan regions in the nation identified by the report are in the Bay Area. They are the areas around San Francisco, San Jose and Oakland, which includes the East Bay. Also in the top four is Stamford-Norwalk, Conn.

Despite an overall flattening of the region's real estate market, an affordable two-bedroom apartment in the East Bay remains out of reach for households that earn less than 65 percent of the regional average income of $6,142 a month, the report found.

While area blue-collar wages average $16.55 an hour, the report concluded that an East Bay household must earn $23.90 an hour in full-time wages to pay rent.

An East Bay household must earn $23.90 an hour in full-time wages to pay rent, the report found.

That far surpasses average earnings of many workers.

For example, people moving off welfare to work in Contra Costa County earn an average of $9 an hour. Blue-collar wages in the Bay Area average $16.55 an hour, according to the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Bringing home about $28,000 a year working at local television studios, Denise Harrison and her three children were effectively priced out of the East Bay housing market this summer.

In June, the Oakland native saw rent on her three-bedroom apartment in the notoriously run-down Village Green complex in Concord jump from $867 to $1,500 per month.

She moved out. Her 19-year-old daughter found her own housing in Sacramento. She and her husband separated partly because of the family's inability to pay rent. Harrison and her 18-year-old daughter moved in with an aunt in Martinez.

Many of her friends have also moved in with other people to split housing costs.

"We need to have some kind of rent control," the 34-year-old woman said. "People are just upping rents to whatever they want it to be."

Rent pressures can be eased by building smaller housing units closer together and near public transportation, said Contra Costa County Supervisor Donna Gerber.

If left up solely to the housing market, however, low-income people will never afford decent housing in the county, Gerber said.

Government agencies needs to step in and subsidize the construction and renting of low-income housing, she said.

Tour of forgotten street car lines

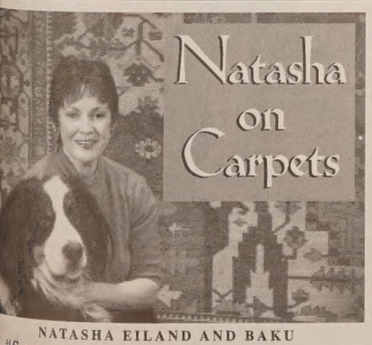

The Berkeley Historical Society is holding a walking tour on "Northbrae and the Trolleys" from 10 a.m. to noon on Saturday, Oct. 13.

Early transit expert, local historian and BHS Board member Phil Gale will be leading the newly developed walking tour of the Northbrae Tunnel and the trolleys that facilitated the expanding neighborhoods of Northbrae and North Berkeley.

The tour will also explore the routes of the Arlington street car line, the Spruce and Euclid street car lines and plans for a "street car" to ascend Marin Avenue above the "Circle".

This tour is not considered to be wheel chair friendly - call for information. The tour starts at 10 a.m. and last about two hours, are restricted to 30 paying participants and require pre-paid reservations. The non-refundable donation for each tour is $10 for the general public.

Call 510-848-0181 for reservations.

NATASHA EILAND AND BAKU

"Selvages of a rug need to be maintained to protect the edges of the rug. The wrapping can be replaced. This is routine work and is not terribly expensive. To maintain a rug's value it is important that a new selvage look just like the old selvage: the same color, material and so on. Resist the temptation to replace the original selvage with a cheap, machine binding."

This Week at Emmett Eiland's ... We repair rugs in our shop. Bring in your carpet and we can advise you about the kinds of repairs that would be best for your rug.

Praising movie house art

JACK TUCKER
Staff Columnist

MAYBE IT'S an age thing. Maybe you DO have to be an antique to appreciate one. But by gosh and by gum, those old art deco frescoes frozen in time on the walls of Kiefer's furniture store warehouse in El Cerrito ought somehow to be saved from oblivion.

The storage space, an integral part of the rambling store that has been sold, used to house a movie theater, built in 1937. Not many people know that. It was a small theater, not as grand as the faux Egyptian palaces of that period, created to lure purse-poor patrons with an opulence lacking in their pinched Depression-era lives.

Preserving this sort of period art is difficult. They are not Giotto frescoes priceless Italian religious treasures enshrined behind glass beyond the ropes holding back open-mouthed tourists in Padua.

They are not the kind of massive art acquisitive American tycoons used to lust for in the heady years after World War I. Then the superrich could buy whole European castles, have them taken apart in numbered pieces, then reassembled at home like giant Lego sets.

There's a chance, one hopes, that the old theater art will be retained by a proposed retail outlet one of five that new owner Fara Pakzad plans for his transformation of the property. Art deco could make a cool theme for a cafe.

Maybe the most realistic niche for the art is in our memories. The year of its construction: 1937, a double whammy for Fred Astaire with "Shall We Dance?" and "A Damsel in Distress" being released in the same year. It was also the first of two years Spencer Tracy won back-to-back Oscars for "Captains Courageous" and by "Boys Town."

No, the wall paintings are not masterpieces. Far as we know, the artist is not somebody famous. His or less likely, her name has been lost. But yes, it would be a shame if we also forgot the murals.

They stand for something. Not as awesome as a wall to war dead. Not as inspiring as a soaring granite sculpture emblematic of such precious intangible national keepsakes as liberty and human rights.

But those old paintings stand for something equally intangible, more fragile than remembrances in steel and stone. Those fanciful and fading old renderings of Zeus and Diana and sensuous dancers and slinky, prancing animals they represent a long-ago striving for something bigger and higher in a time when many needed a nudge to look upward and outward from the trough of the Depression.

We made it. And if we found a gleam of hope in a hokey movie house mural if it takes a relic to appreciate one so be it. So there!

Dealing with aphids safely

Worried about aphid attacks in your garden? Every gardener with roses fears aphids — those tiny sucking insects that feed on plant sap and cause leaves to turn black with sooty mold. Many gardeners rush out for the super-strength killer and give their roses a chemical bath at the first sign of an aphid. Some of these chemicals can be so harmful that the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency recently announced the ban and phase out of two commonly used pesticides, diazinon and chlorpyrofos, citing human health concerns.

The bad news for the environment is that commonly used pesticides are finding their way into local waterways at levels that exceed standards to protect aquatic wildlife. The good news is that there are simple, common sense ways to control aphids without using toxic chemicals.

"Everyone hates having aphids in their gardens," says Sharon Gosselin of the Alameda Countywide Clean Water Program, "but there are plenty of effective ways to deal with them that don't involve using polluting pesticides."

A little about aphids

The aphids you'll find in Alameda County are small insects with soft, pear-shaped bodies. They have long legs and antennae, and most have two tubelike structures called cornicles on their hind end. Aphids can be many colors and are usually found on buds or the undersides of leaves. Most plants can tolerate a small amount of aphids. On some plants, however, large numbers of aphids can stunt plant growth. Some species of aphids can also transmit plant diseases.

Get Rid of Aphids Now! Here are some tips from the Alameda Countywide Clean Water Program on controlling aphids in your garden without using harmful pesticides:

Physical Control: Knock aphids off your plants with a strong stream of water. Or spray with insecticidal soap.

Avoid excessive leaf pruning because it stimulates aphid-attracting growth.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A different question

Wishing to calm the public, politicians and the media have desperately addressed the following questions: How did this country's intelligence agencies fail to know of these planned attacks? Has the nation's integrity been dismantled? What steps will be taken to retaliate against terrorism? Will the perpetrators be found and will they be served due justice?

But the fundamental question, which is not being addressed, is: Why were these acts committed?

To ensure such a horrendous event is not repeated, we must attempt to understand the underlying causes of this catastrophe. Who felt so marginalized and frustrated with the United States that they resorted to mass murder in order to make a point?

Are U.S. policies affecting world citizens in ways our government has not addressed? Subsequently, could this country do anything differently so as not to provoke such a violent statement?

These questions are difficult to ask, but they are essential. The answers may be more complicated than what politicians desire, for they require critical examination of our national policies and attitudes.

Addressing these issues might shake the legitimacy of U.S. policies and the created notion of how free and democratic a nation we live in.

Answering these questions is the only way we will find the insight of how to proceed and what actions we much change so as to prevent future acts of atrocious violence.

Our weakest link

Let's have some fun! Let's not print any more news about anything Berkeley does anymore.

We don't care. Berkeley is not the beginning or the end. The sun does not rise and set on Berkeley. Berkeley isn't news anymore. We really don't care what Berkeley thinks or does.

Berkeley is dead, a thing of the past. We have moved beyond Berkeley. Let's have a good-bye ceremony for Berkeley.

We don't care about you anymore, Berkeley. Do what you want. March, scream, burn flags — you are nothing to us. There is no there, there. You are our weakest link. Good-bye.

Not the answer

I shall be surprised if the well-organized gun lobby does not use recent Sacramento mass killings as an opportunity to call again for every household to be armed.

Great! Then every paranoiac sent over the edge by the loss of girlfriend and job, or in a violent spat with his wife, will have a gun.

Set a new date

I was shocked and appalled that the El Cerrito Democratic Club held its candidate night for City Council hopefuls, as scheduled, on Sept. 12, the day after the terrorist attacks.

One of our council candidates, Gina Brusatori, was stranded in Chicago through no fault of her own, due to the nationwide flight cancellations. However, this group held the meeting anyway, a member saying it is part of our democracy, liberty and freedom. But was it really?

Here we have a candidate who is unavoidably detained due to terrorists attacking our democracy, liberty and freedom, who was denied these rights just because a few people decided to go on with a meeting that could have easily been postponed until Brusatori arrived back home.

Shame on the El Cerrito Democratic Club. A new date should be set and all candidates given equal rights. Isn't that the true meaning of "democracy, liberty and freedom?" And how about "justice for all?"

Laura Pricco

Proud of Rep. Lee

I wish to thank Rep. Barbara Lee for her courageous voice of conscience and reason in opposing the rush to all-out war against an undetermined enemy within hours of the horrendous attacks in New York and Washington.

I just returned from a rally in downtown Berkeley, where people of all ages and colors voiced their fervent desire for justice, not revenge, and against war as a solution to any world problems.

I am among the thousands who are proud to be Lee's constituents and who are working every day for peace and justice, not domination, racism, and hatred at home and abroad. We are committed to organizing the voices for peace, justice and sanity so that they will be heard loud and strong by the powers-that-be.

As ordinary citizens, we do not equate patriotism with war and violence and domination, and we do not want to be hated and feared by people in countries our government has exploited and manipulated to maintain its power and political advantage.

Keep up the good work, Rep. Lee, and know that we are with you.

Yes on Measure C

Chief Larry Murdo's recent change of mind about his retirement should not de ter the citizens of Albany from making a good decision about how our chief of po lice should be selected.

By voting yes on Measure C, we can ensure there will be a fair and open hir ing process for the position. If we pass this measure now, when Chief Murdo does decide to retire we will have the mechanism in place to hire the best-quali ified person from a large and diverse pool of professional candidates.

Vote yes on Measure C.

Party is irrelevant

Since when do we need the endorse ment of the El Cerrito Democratic Party for our City Council candidates? This is a very small city and politics and money from political parties should not even en ter into our elections.

We do not care to which party the can didates belong. Let us conduct ourselves and operate our City Council as a busi ness; better decisions could be made and money would not play a part.

Being a resident of this community for many years, I become less enchanted with it. My vote for council members will be difficult — if I vote at all.

Let's clean up

I would like to make a public reque to the businesses in my immediate vici ity to take local civic pride up a notch. I am referring specifically to the four cor ners of Solano and San Pablo avenues.

This very busy intersection has a gre deal of litter and it appears that if we de pend on the city of Albany to police th area for us, the results could continue to be less than desirable. I especially fin that the gutters are always filled with li ter.

If all the local businesses, instead just a few of them, took a few minute each day to sweep up their areas, I thi this problem would be licked.

Special mention needs to be made all of those businesses that serve or se alcohol, where litter is significant.

To all of the businesses that feel the are already doing their best, go to yo neighbors and discuss this issue in friendly and courteous manner. Let's se if we can make our neighborhood nic efore I go any further, I must acknowledge the many readers who have emphatically let me know that I do not speak for them.

As one put it, "The country is not united, and George Bush is not my president. He's just as illegitimate today as he was Sept. 10."

Was it only two weeks ago that I wrote about how lonely Barbara Lee must be feeling? Now I know how she felt. Two of my closest friends have stopped speaking to me. My mailbox is filling up with angry e-mails. And just yesterday I was accosted by an elderly woman who was so mad, she was spitting as she spoke.

All I can say is that these folks must have been watching a different TV show than I was. It's an axiom of military theory that generals have an unfortunate tendency to fight the last war; and it might be true of anti-war protesters, too.

How can I put it plainly? This is not Vietnam. And Osama bin Laden is not Ho Chi Minh.

For me, this war is a logical extension of the civil rights movement of the '50s and the anti-war movement of the '60s. I saw no incongruity in the Harlem Youth Choir singing "We Shall Overcome" at the memorial service at Yankee Stadium. The common thread is freedom. Sometimes we have to fight for it non-violently. But other times we just have to fight. As Ecclesiastes says, "To every thing there is a season."

Lincoln knew that. In 1846 he was a young Congressman leading the opposition to the Mexican War; he was the Barbara Lee of his day. But 15 years later, when the Civil War broke out, he became a hawk, explaining, "As our circumstances have changed, we must learn to think anew."

It comes down to this: People on the left are going to have to decide whom they fear more — George Bush or Osama bin Laden. For me, it's a no-brainer. Bush isn't the president I would have chosen, but he's the one we've got. We have no choice but to all hang together.

If we don't, as Ben Franklin said, we'll all hang separately.

Remember last week's column about Mark Bingham, one of the heroes of United Flight 93 who sacrificed their lives to save the Capitol in Washington?

Another hero of Flight 93 was also a local guy: Tom Burnett of San Ramon. Last week's issue of the Catholic Voice, the official publication of the Oakland Diocese, had an interview with Burnett's priest, Father Frank Colacicco, who says that — like Bingham — Burnett was a fine human being long before Sept. 11.

He was a devout Catholic who faithfully attended Sunday Mass (and often daily Mass as well), and he practiced what he preached. He was a tireless supporter of Father Frank's efforts to help street children in Guatemala and Nicaragua, and he could always be counted on to show up for fund raising drives and repair bicycles to send to the abandoned children.

"He was always here to help," says Father Frank. "He was a very giving person."

One of my readers, David Coolidge of Berkeley, finds hope in the fact that Burnett and Bingham were able to act together, despite their obvious differences. "(Burnett) was described as a family man and devout Christian," he writes. "When I read in your column that Mark Bingham was gay, and seemingly a hard-core party-timer to boot, it occurred to me that here was a really dramatic demonstration of that 'strength in diversity' we're always hearing about.

"There's a better than even chance that neither of these men would have appreciated or really approved of the other's life choices, and under normal circumstances they probably wouldn't have been friends. But when the deal went down, there they were together."

Amen.

Silence speaks loudly during post-attack airline travel

CLARA-RAE GENSER
Community Folk

Last week I told you all about Pittsburgh. But what I neglected to tell you about was my trip getting there. And therein, indeed, lies a tale. For I left for that city on September 19, exactly one week after that horrific day, Sept. 11.

There was still a distinct feeling of danger in the air and no security anywhere. And very few people were flying. I had been calling the airlines every day for three or four days before, and was assured that all was well and the planes would go as planned.

On the last day, however, I was told that the prop plane which was to be my plane on the first leg of my return had been changed, as had the hour. I was to be on a jet three hours later than noted on my itinerary.

Three hours later, getting me home very late at night. I was not happy, but then, I had not been happy with the prospect of being on a very old prop plane for the first hour and a half. By the way, the jet plane was a very small one. I think it was an A-9.

The whole idea of flying one week after the disaster was not inviting, and I saw, as I entered the airport three hours early, (at an impossible 5 a.m.) that the feeling was not mine alone. The body language of those standing in line said it all: stiff or hunched shoulders, grim faces, and very little talking. The line was not long at that moment, although within 10 minutes the line behind me stretched almost across the terminal.

The woman in front of me was the only one talking, and she had much to say. She was handling three very large bags and one smaller one. It wasn't easy. Besides which she was constantly unzipping one, reaching for something and transferring it to another bag, all the time telling me of the terribly long line she had endured at LAX the day before, and explaining her activities.

She travels from craft show to home show to any other show where she may exhibit and sell her handwork. A tiny, slim woman, she seemed unable to stand still. Meanwhile the airline had called in more people to man the stations, so it wasn't long before I was given my boarding pass and sent to the gate. With three hours to wait.

Going through security was painful. They were obviously doing everything right, and I didn't mind taking things out of my purse and putting them in a box to be sent through. I was glad they were thorough. Several people had luggage opened and inspected. Everyone took the time to do it as ordered.

Being a people-watcher, I did just that. There were only a few flights going out at that place and time, and there seemed to be no people there other than the rather quiet, rather grim people waiting with me. Again, I noticed that few were chatting or interacting with each other. Even the family or work groups were strangely silent. The attendants were pleasant and efficient, but there were no extra pleasantries, and the smiles were strained.

On the plane I noticed the captain or co-pilot spoke to us more often than usual. I guessed that this was to assure us that all was well in the cockpit — and that assurance felt good.

The plane was only about half full, and most of us were able to stretch out on the empty seats, which should have been very relaxing, but somehow was not. My across-the-aisle seatmate seemed to need to talk, and since she was on her way home from a poets' conference, I found her interesting. But soon we, too, fell into the silent mode of the rest of the passengers.

In Pittsburgh, the security measures made it necessary to walk a very long way to the taxis and shuttles. Fortunately, a disembarking pilot offered to lead me, so I didn't get lost.

Coming back was even more trying. Not the first leg, from Pittsburgh to Minneapolis. At least for me, for I had a seatmate who was willing to chat, and told me his adventures when he and his wife went to Romania to adopt two children, 11 years ago. A fascinating story with, I am glad to say, a happy ending. He called the children to report his coming, during the break between planes.

But it was on the plane to San Francisco that I found the greatest reaction. Probably because that was our destination, and had been the destination of two of the planes hijacked and used by the terrorists. Grim was again the word for most countenances, and the silence on the plane was deafening. Again it was a tiny jet, so every seat was taken. As I walked up and down the aisle, as I am wont to do, I noticed that even the peop... whose eyes were closed... were, perhaps, asleep, wer... looking relaxed. Biological controls

■ Learn to recognize beneficial insects. (Remember that pesticides don't discriminate, they kill the good bugs along with the bad ones.) One of the most beneficial enemies of aphids is the tiny wasp parasitoid that lay their eggs inside the bodies of aphids. These tiny wasps cannot sting people.

■ Attract beneficial bugs to your garden by planting a wide variety of flowering plants. The adult forms of many beneficial insects, including tiny wasps and lacewings, feed on pollen and nectar.

■ Since ants protect aphids, controlling ants will also help control aphids

Chemical control

■ Use only as a last resort.

■ Use spray (horticultural) oils to control aphids without leaving toxic residues for natural enemies.

■ Buy insecticides that target aphids specifically.

■ Don't over-fertilize plants with high nitrogen fertilizer in early spring. Aphids like fast, new growth. Use a slow-release fertilizer, like fish emulsion. For more information, including downloadable articles on how to deal with aphids, visit go online at www.cleanwaterprogram.com/publications_libraryResources.htm. It is easy to control aphids without using dangerous chemicals that pollute water and harm wildlife.

■ The "using chemicals only" approach to controlling insects is usually only a temporary solution. A common-sense approach to controlling insects is what every gardener needs. Remember that using physical controls, then using biological controls and, as a last resort, using pesticides, is the best long-term solution for getting rid of aphids.

■ To find information on a store near you that sells less-toxic control methods, go online at www.cleanwaterprogram.com/residents_pollutionPrevention.htm and download our list of Integrated Pest Management Partnership stores in Alameda County. You may also call 888-BAYWISE.

■ On Sept. 15 at 1:45 p.m. two unknown suspects approached a man in the 6300 block of Knott Avenue. After exchanging a few words, one of the suspects lifted his shirt to show he was carrying a gun. The other suspect then patted down the victim and stole $20 from the victim's pocket.

■ On Sept. 15 at 2:30 p.m. a patron of the Freeway Motel on San Pablo Avenue reportedly left and stole bedding from the motel. The suspect is a 42-year-old Richmond woman.

■ On Sept.14 a 33-year-old El Cerrito woman reported that her ex-husband, a 35- year-old Richmond man, called and left messages on her phone in violation of an active restraining order.

Are Your Parents Driving You Nuts?

Adult Children Face the Challenge of Parenting Their Parent

By Susan Rich

Fremont - Have you taken on the role of chauffeur, chef, nurse, repairman, housekeeper and shopper?

Adult children are currently faced with emotional challenges that changes in our lifestyles have accentuated. Times have changed dramatically since you were "the kid" and they were "the parents". Back then times were simpler, a burger and malt was 25 cents and a 50 cent pair of bobby socks dressed you in style.

In the past, a one income family was the norm, compared to the 80% of two income families today. Extended families lived closer, in addition to work, shopping, physicians and entertainment being "just around the corner". Commute time was not the topic of discussion every night at dinner. A family could buy a three bedroom ranch for $25,000 and arrive home from work at 5:30 p.m., just in time for "Father Knows Best" or "Leave it to Beaver".

Today that same burger and malt, if you can find one, costs $10.00 and a $6.00 pair of hose lasts one day at work. Families have scattered and getting to the doctor and other errands is farther and takes longer. Dinner is at 8:00 p.m. and the conversation focuses on the traffic jam on the Dumbarton Bridge, that actually got you home at 8:30 p.m. Advances in the medical field have created longevity, but have raised issues with "parenting your parent". Your parents insist that they are retaining their independence at home, but calls increase in frequency requesting your help.

Tim MacDonald enjoys a conversation with a resident in the community's elegant living room.

Parenting a parent is possibly one of the most stressful experiences of our lives, and often happens when we are least prepared.

While some seniors are physically fit and able to meet their daily needs, many are unable to handle the stress of caring for a home that requires repairs, yard work, cooking, shopping and driving. Coping with the loss of a spouse can create social isolation and additional competition for your shrinking time available after work.

Independent and assisted living communities can supply a remedy to help with the activities of daily living and social isolation. In the past, there were fewer options for seniors other than nursing homes and many of those did not create a vibrant, gracious lifestyle. There is good news, even if you can't buy a burger and malt for 25 cents, new exciting senior assisted living communities such as Carlton Plaza in San Leandro offer residents the opportunity for a "Cruise ship Lifestyle" with assistance if needed. Your parents will discover a great place to make friends and you'll discover a great way to reduce stress.

ll of the ROTC classes of he memorial includes a plaque set into a boulder, a bench and newly planted cherry trees. The new memorial is located along the pathway between the Alumni House and Zellerbach Hall.

More than 70 people attended the dedication ceremony, which included remarks by university Chancellor Robert Berdahl, the UC Berkeley Army ROTC color guard, performances by the Cal Jazz Choir and a bugler playing "taps."

"We ask you, O Lord, to grant wisdom, prudence and strength to the leaders of our nation, especially in this time of difficulty, and strengthen and protect all our men and women involved in his struggle," said the Rev. Martin Walsh, a retired Catholic priest and Army Reserve Chaplin, in his benediction at the ceremony.

El Cerrito sets citywide clean-up

By J.R. Deaton
STAFF WRITER

EL CERRITO — If you start thinking things are looking a little spiffier around town it's not your imagination, it's your tax dollars at work.

The City Council approved $250,000 for a fall clean-up program.

"We thought this would be a great idea with the focus of spreading out the money as widely as we could on a lot of small projects that are very visible," said City Manager Scott Hanin. He said the selected areas needed a "more focused attack" before routine maintenance can "keep them at that level."

The money will be spent in three main areas: public safety buildings ($27,000), public rights of way ($71,000) and city parks and facilities ($147,000). A contingency amount of about $5,000 brings the total to $250,000.

Projects include curb painting, replanting prominent street medians, Ohlone Greenway clean-up, San Pablo Avenue street trees, repainted fire hydrants and bus benches, spotlights for flag poles at the department's three fire stations, repainting city clubhouses, the Senior Center and Community Center, a new drinking fountain at Cerrito Vista Group Picnic Area, repair of asphalt walkways, vegetation removal, tree and shrub pruning and replacing the sand in park play areas with a rounded wood chip product called Fibar.

"So we're not going to be able to build sand castles anymore," joked Councilwoman Kathleen Perka after asking about the new Fibar.

Bruce King, maintenance and engineering services manager, in response to a question from Mayor Larry Damon, said the possibility of installing asphalt steps in some of the steeper walkways of Canyon Trail Park will be looked into.

"I really like this project," Councilwoman Janet Abelson said about the fall clean-up effort. "I think that this will really make our city a better place and it'll make us feel good about our city."

Hanin said the goal is to complete all of the work this month.

Two generations of presidential thanks for family of WWII rescuer

By Tom Lochner
TIMES STAFF WRITER

ALBANY — Early last month, Virginia Moody found an unusual piece of mail in her box.

"I saw this thing from the White House," Moody said. "Couldn't imagine what it was. And it was this letter from the president."

The letter, dated Aug. 31, read: "Dear Virginia: I am saddened to learn about your husband's passing ... Laura and I send our heartfelt sympathy. Our prayers are with you and your family at this difficult time. Sincerely, George W. Bush."

Daniel T. Moody, a retired electronics technician at Lawrence Berkeley Laboratory and a World War II submariner, died July 20. The Massachusetts native and 45-year resident of Albany was 83.

A few days after the president's letter, Virginia Moody got another presidential letter, this one from former president George H.W. Bush, the president's father.

"Dan Moody was one of the key men aboard (the USS) Finback, the submarine that saved my life," the letter, dated Sept. 10, read in part. "My gratitude was enormous back on that horrible September 2nd, 1944, and it remains strong to this very day.

"Dan was a true patriot who served his country well, and I was honored to serve with him.

Sincerely, George Bush."

The elder Bush, then a Navy lieutenant junior grade, was piloting an Avenger aircraft on a bombing run over the Japanese island of Chichi Jima on Sept. 2, 1944, when he was hit by anti-aircraft fire. Bush parachuted into the Pacific Ocean; his two crewmates died.

Bush drifted in a raft for three hours before the Finback plucked him from the water. He became essentially another submarine crewman until the end of the Finback's war patrol about a month later.

Dan Moody was the Finback's chief torpedoman.

"I showed (the letters) to my doctor, and he said, 'Isn't this a wonderful country?'" Virginia Moody said. "These two men, busy as they are in important positions, thinking about us down here."

Once before, years after the war, the elder Bush had remembered her husband. In early January 1989, the Moodys received an invitation to the 41st president's inauguration. But they could not attend, because Dan Moody had had back surgery two weeks earlier.

Elaine Moody Hauptman of Michigan, Virginia and Dan Moody's daughter, recounting a story her father had told her, said that as the Finback crew plucked the then-20-year-old Bush from the water, he told them, "when I am elected president, I am inviting you all to my inaugurational ball."

"He remembered and kept his promise," Hauptman said. "Looking up all the men of the Finback and inviting them — it never smacked of publicity. It was a quiet act of class, with no political motive."

Today, with the United States mobilizing for possible war, a war story more than half a century old takes on a whole new poignancy, Hauptman said.

"I kind of visualize that young man out there floating in the ocean," Hauptman, a nutritionist and novelist, said. "Before, it was kind of an abstract bit of family history.

"But today, when we think about sending our young people into battle . . . it puts the potential of a different spin on it.

"There's the hero aspect of this young man who was rescued, and how far that young man went in life," Hauptman said. "But I'm also thinking of all those unmiraculous stories about those young men who didn't get rescued."

Her family has seen more than its share of war, Hauptman said. Her brother, Daniel C. Moody, died in April — partly, Hauptman and her mother believe, from the lingering effects of Agent Orange, to which he was exposed as a Navy corpsman assigned to a Marine reconnaissance unit during the Vietnam War.

None of Dan Moody's grandsons — Hauptman's 22-year-old son, and three nephews, ages 17 to 30 — are in the military — "but not for any lack of respect."

"We owe a huge debt to the military," Hauptman said. "We're grateful there hasn't been a call to arms. But if there were, I suspect all four of these grandchildren would respond. And some of the females might be in there too."

"I am very proud of what the men in my family have done in the military," Hauptman said, "but I dread the thought of my own children going through it."

Dan Moody is survived by his wife; daughter; son Jack; sister Patricia Grazier; eight grandchildren; and two great-grandchildren.

His ashes were scattered at sea Thursday.

Appearing along with Maris will be school board President Marsha Skinner, AHS principal Gloria Gallindo and 65 other public persons who have been involved with the planning process since day one.

It won't be a complete unveiling however, as some elements of the campus are still under construction. Tours will not go through the gym, wrestling pit and weight room because of ongoing work. Also unfinished is the entire back entrance, which houses the tennis and basketball courts along with the amphitheater area.

"It's too bad in a sense because (the gym) is one of our most impressive facilities on campus," said Booker, who implied that another unveiling might occur once the gym is fully operational toward the start of the basketball season.

That night there will be a social at the Albany Community Center next at the library on Solano, from 7 to 10 p.m. It will be a nice opportunity for any alumni who will be coming in from out of town to munch on finger foods and catch up with old mates.

It will be a weekend of finality that will be met with much jubilation for the hundreds who have spent painstaking years assembling the new facility.

"From the feelings I've been getting from other people, this is a huge, huge event," said Booker.

School reverberates with big band sound of Vax Jazz Orchestra

■ Jazz group trades music education for practice space

By Clare Curley
STAFF WRITER

On a typical afternoon, the third-floor music room at Longfellow Arts and Technology Magnet Middle School is filled with students tuning up their woodwinds, practicing the piano, and taking a crack at the xylophone.

Lately, though, it has doubled as a practice space for the local jazz scene's latest arrival. Mike Vax, a trumpeter, leader and educator of big band, has made his way to Berkeley's expanding music scene though the back door.

Also a nonprofit organization called Friends of Big Band Jazz, the music group left their space they rented at Alice Art Center in Oakland because they could no longer afford it. They struck a deal with Longfellow principal William Dwyer to use the space for free an afternoon every week or two; in exchange they would give educational presentations in the school's classrooms.

In between gigs, Vax spends his time traveling and holding "clinics" on big band music at schools around the world.

"I tell kids, if you took Michael Jackson, Mariah Carey and Britney Spears, and put them all into one, they still wouldn't be as famous as Glen Miller was in the 1930s and 40s," he said.

They look at him like he's nuts.

Vax lives in the hills near Concord with his wife Peggy, a trombonist. Still, he hopes his new proximity will enable him to hold more workshops in Berkeley.

Over the summer the organization raised $3,000 from performances to go toward scholarships. The group has sent students from other parts of the East Bay to jazz camp, and Vax hopes to attract more Berkeley students. Smaller donations have gone towards music books and other charities.

Berkeley High's highly regarded Jazz Ensemble already gets a fair share of attention from recruiters, but Vax isn't necessarily looking for rising stars.

"We'll have different levels of scholarships for middle and high school students, based on talent and maybe need," he said, "but most important is desire."

Selling his knowledge is nothing new to Vax, who has been in the business of educating for decades.

After playing with the Stan Kenton band for two years in the early 1970s, he decided to start his own big band. In his lengthy career, Vax has been all over the map. "I used to be a sax player. Then I smartened up and went into business banking," he said. He also played with a Latin band that toured in South America until their bus was ambushed and riddled with bullets.

Lee Tanner, who has taken photos of such jazz greats as Miles Davis and Dizzy Gillespie, currently has a show at the new Berkeley Jazzschool. When he and Mayor Shirley Dean got wind the band was looking for space, they supported Longfellow's decision to swap space for school workshops.

On a recent Monday, sun poured in the windows as some 20 of Vax's band members practiced the saucy rhythms of "Royal Rendezvous." Afterwards, rapid trumpet scales mingled with the chatter of people packing up their instruments.

Pianist Max Perkoff, who joined the group last summer, also plays for several other local groups.

"The big difference here is this is one of the few big bands that rehearses," he said.

In the big band scene, it is not unusual for players to show up at an event never having practiced together before, and sight-read the whole show.

The sounds of booming brass sections and jazzy swing rhythms evoke nostalgic images of 1940s dance halls, one of the draws for Perkoff and other members. "If I could be transported to another time, I would be a member of Duke Ellington or Count Basie's orchestra," he said.

This band plays more than old-timer tunes, though.

Vax mixes traditional big band songs with Latin jazz, as well as renditions written by the members themselves — such as a version of George Gershwin's "Embracable You" presented as up-tempo samba.

Still, their struggle has always been with funding.

Usually, players don't visit classes unless they get paid, and the band also doles out cash to rent theater space and to pay for custodians. In addition, members get $100 or more per performance.

"I don't let the members play for free" said Vax, noting they're already turning down opportunities to make more money elsewhere.

Dean says she isn't aware of financial assistance for such programs. "We have a grant program, but they have to come in at the right time," she said.

Said Berkeley School Board President Terry Doran, "I was favorably impressed" after meeting with the band.

While the school district is facing a possible budget deficit, there are other ways to pay for visiting artists, Doran added. For example, Berkeley High School uses BSEP funds to pay for an Afro-Haitian music and dance program in which artists work with students.

Big band is a fading music form, even in the Bay Area where there is no shortage of art appreciation. Compared with the 1970s, only a fraction of the groups are still performing.

Vax's band hopes to grow through exposure they'll get from their five upcoming concerts at Longfellow, the first one taking place Sept. 30.

Students itching to get an earful of the old-timers' dance music can watch the band rehearse at Longfellow and ask the musicians questions, although space is somewhat limited.

> Keeping the communication lines open between the two parties assures the sellers that the agent is keeping them apprised of any and all offers.

Selling a home can be a lot of work and sometimes quite stressful. It is incumbent upon an agent to satisfy the seller's expectations of routine updates, this will ensure the possibility of future business not to mention a successful sale.

Furthermore, as a seller you must demand the communication exchange between you and your agent.

If both parties work in a cooperative effort, the selling experience will be more successful and enjoyable for both the agent and the seller involved.

A look around the real estate community

News and information for and about the area real estate community and affiliated industries.

ATTENTION PUBLIC

Alameda's Inforum Meeting Address Senior Issues

The public is always welcome at the Inforum Meeting. The Inforum is sponsored by the Alameda Association of Realtors. AAR presents the second Inforum Luncheon for 2001. The luncheon is from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m., Thursday, Oct. 11. The location is the Harbor Bay Club. You'll hear from a variety of speakers as they address options available to the growing senior community in Alameda. The Inforum is dedicated to helping realtors stay informed about the real estate market, the community and issues that affect the economy. For more information contact Kristen McMahan of AAR at 510-523-7229.

Senior Care Guides

Georgia Richardson of Richardson Real Estate Services is offering New Lifestyles, an area guide to senior residences and care options. Guides are available for the San Francisco Bay or the Sacramento/North Bay areas. To obtain a complimentary issue, contact Richardson at 510-569-3499.

Real Estate Careers

Have you ever wondered about a career in real estate? Want to know what it takes? What type of schooling is involved? How do I prepare for the exam? The answers to your questions are available through the Noble Fields School of Real Estate. For more information call the Oakland office at 510-451-7977 or the main office, in San Francisco at 415-956-6169.

OAR AND ORAL LEE

When one thinks of Oakland and kids and Scholarships, the first name that comes to mind is OraL Lee Brown. Her promise and dedication have provided college scholarship funds for high school students. Her promise grew to become the Oral Lee Brown Foundation. The Oakland Association of Realtors wanted to do something extra to help support that foundation. A committee, chaired by Evelyn Walker of Coldwell Banker was formed to create a simple and easy way for those in the real estate community to contribute. Real estate agents and brokers may designate contributions, at the close of escrow, for a special fund. The proceeds of the fund will be donated to the Ora Lee Brown Foundation. To find out more and participate contact Walker at 510-339-4778.

REALTORS RELIEF REACHES $4.3 MILLION

The Realtors Housing Relief Fund, established by the National Association of Realtors has raised $4.3 million. The fund helps pay the mortgage and rental costs of the families shattered by terrorist attacks. Many realtors are reaching out to their communities to ask the public to help. The effort will continue as long as there is a need. The goal is to make sure no family suffering from this event is forced to lose their home. Victims' families can contact the Realtors Housing Relief Fund at 800-874-6500. Realtors and others can find contribution information on-line at relief.realtor.org.

BAR RELIEF FUND CONTRIBUTIONS

The Berkeley Association of Realtors contributed $1,000 to the National Association of Realtors Housing Relief Fund, benefiting the families of the Sept. 11 victims of terrorism. BAR is encouraging its members to make individual contributions. Anyone can contribute by sending a check payable to the Realtors Housing Relief Fund, c/o The National Association of Realtors, 430 North Michigan Ave., Chicago IL 60611. Questions can be directed to Don Clark at the BAR office at 510-848-4288.

ARPB NETWORK BREAKFAST

The Associated Real Property Brokers (ARPB) holds a networking breakfast on the third Wednesday of every month. This month's breakfast is from 8 to 10 a.m., Wednesday, Oct. 17. The Oak Tree Grille on Embarcadero in Oakland is the location. Real estate agents are encouraged to bring flyers and market their properties. The meeting is open forum. For more information call Bridget Cain of Fidelity National Title at 510-893-8100.

BAR NETWORKING LUNCHEON

Could this be the kindest cut of all?

KAREN SENZIG
Mortgage Mast

Well, Uncle Alan Greenspan cut rates again. The Fed Funds rate now stands at nearly a 40-year low at 2.50 percent. Often called the "overnight rate," the Fed Funds rate is the interest rate that the banks and the Treasury Department charge for very short-term loans.

We waited breathlessly for the usual, temporary spike up in the 10 and 30-year bond yields. It didn't happen. The yields are holding as I write; the 30-year bond is as low as 5.30 percent and the 10-year as low as 4.47 percent. (The 10 and 30-year bond yields are benchmarks in setting mortgage interest rates.)

Normally in the days that follow a short-term rate cut we would typically see yields spike as much as 20 to 25 basis points.

The main goal behind this latest .50 rate cut seems to be to restore consumer confidence in this already weakened economy ,recently shattered by the Sept. 11 attacks. Investors in the stock market seem to be co-operating.

After the last half point cut on Sept. 17 the market suffered the worst week historically of dollar declines. And, yet, after Tuesday's rate cut, the Dow Jones Industrials continues in the eighth day of a 1000 point rally.

The short-term rate cut had an immediate impact on the prime lending rate, further reducing that index from 9.25 percent last January to 5.50 percent today. The prime rate is typically what banking institutions base their rates for home equity lines of credit (HELOC) and auto loans.

We believe that there should a definite easing of mortgage interest rates, to he tune[illegible] ally perhaps, as low as wha[illegible] parents experienced in the [illegible]

Already we have lenders offering 6.25 percent, no-[illegible] year mortgage loans for [illegible] family homes to $275,000 point is one percent of the [illegible] amount and is usually [illegible] ered as a way to buy down interest rate; 5.75 percent available for two points.

Of course, the lenders are looking for those squeaky clean borrowers who ha[illegible] credit scores in the 700s (t[illegible] range is 350 to 840) and w[illegible] can fully document their [illegible] come and assets.

However, as Franklin Raines CEO of Fannie Mae, (in an [illegible] terview on CNBC last Wednesday) warned that the short-[illegible] rate cut could still have an [illegible] tionary effect in stimulating [illegible] economy, which in turn co[illegible] make mortgage interest ra[illegible] spike back up.

Unfortunately, that is the [illegible] coaster we ride in Mortgage Madness.

Tour features distinctive Oakland neighborhoods

Oakland Heritage Alliance's fall house tour highlighting the Oakland neighborhoods Claremont Pines and Rockridge will be held Sunday, Oct. 7, from noon to 5 p.m.

Visit eight spectacular homes of historic and architectural interest. Seven of the homes on this full-house tour were built between the 1910s and 1930s, and range in style from Arts & Crafts, Swiss Chalet, Moderne, and contemporary Californian to Mediterranean Revival, English Arts & Crafts and Mediterranean-Pueblo.

An eighth home, built after the 1991 Oakland Hills Firestorm, is a unique Mediterranean with French, Spanish, and Moorish influences and features an elegant, sinuous French door and transom window salvaged from the old City of Paris store in San Francisco.

Some of the Bay Area's most notable architects designed homes on this year's tour, including Louis Christian Mullgardt, architect for the de Young Museum in Golden Gate Park and some of the buildings at the 1915 Panama Pacific Exposition in San Francisco.

His grandly designed 1912 home on Broadway Terrace, intended for large-scale entertainment and once the home of the late Oakland Tribune publisher Bob Maynard, will be the site of an ongoing reception for tour-goers.

Also on the tour is a Moderne-style home, which Clarence Mayhew designed in 1936, featuring Japanese-inspired sliding window coverings.

Another home, described in the September 1937 issue of The Architect and Engineer as an example of the "contemporary Californian type of domestic architecture" using "natural beauty, warmth, and human traditions," was designed by Miller and Warnecke.

Tile buffs and historians will enjoy viewing historic Batchelder, S & S Tile, Claycraft Potteries, Tropico, D & M Tile, and Mueller tiles in several of the homes.

Some of the homes are located in the 1910 subdivision now called Upper Rockridge while others are in the contiguous 1927 Claremont Pines development. Both areas were designed as settings for large homes in aesthetically pleasing environs, with streets following the natural contours of the land rather than the more typical Roman grid pattern.

Tickets cost $25 for OHA members, $30 non-members, $35 non-members day of tour. Call 510-763-9218 to purchase tickets.

Think energy efficiency

The National Fen- ...stration Rating Council (NFRC) ...s a window energy rating sys- ...based on four key factors: U- ...or, Solar Heat Gain Coefficient ...GC), Visible Transmittance ...) and Air Leak (AL). Do your ...ework.

Plumbing fixtures, shower heads. Installing energy-saving shower heads saves 10 to 16 percent of hot water use. Dripping faucets and plumbing could waste energy and over 200 gallons of water a month.

Fireplace. A well-sealed, tempered glass fireplace screen and a tightly closing damper will stop heat and money from going up the chimney.

Appliances

Old appliances waste energy. It is amazing how much is saved with updated appliances. Those more than ten years old are not as energy efficient as the latest models.

Refrigerator. A refrigerator can be the biggest energy hog in the house. New versions may use only half as much electricity as older ones

Washer, dryer. The newest, top-of-the-line, front-loading washer uses 68 percent less water and 67 percent less energy. Its matching gas dryer is equally impressive.

Stove, Dishwasher, Furnace, Hot Water Heater. In addition to being more efficient, the latest model furnaces and water heaters take up substantially less space.

Typical appliance energy costs

Many people have no idea of how expensive it is to operate home appliances. Here are some examples:

- Twenty cubic-foot frost-free refrigerator, $12 to $ 22 per month
- Freezer, $15 to $30 per month
- Electric oven, 30 to 60 cents per hour
- Gas oven, 5 to 11 cents per hour
- Electric range, top burner, 7 to 30 cents per hour
- Gas range, top burner, 5 to 8 cents per hour

Median home price up 8.6% in August

■ Home sales increase 2.3 percent, compared to this time last year

CALIFORNIA ASSOCIATION OF REALTORS

LOS ANGELES (Sept. 25) - Sales of existing homes in California in August increased 2.3 percent and the median home price rose 8.6 percent compared to the same period a year ago, the California Association of Realtors and Real Estate Solutions, a real estate information service, reported today.

"Both sales and the median price of a home hit record highs in August," said C.A.R. President Gary Thomas.

"It remains to be seen what long-term impact the events of Sept. 11 may have on the residential real estate market in California."

Closed escrow sales of existing, single-family detached homes in California totaled 571,070 in August at a seasonally adjusted annualized rate, according to information collected by C.A.R. from more than 90 Multiple Listing Services (MLS) statewide.

Statewide home resale activity increased 2.3 percent from the 558,060 sales pace recorded in August 2000. Resale activity posted an increase of 13.5 percent in August compared to July.

The statewide sales figure represents what the total number of homes sold during 2001 would be if sales maintained the August pace throughout the year. It is adjusted to account for seasonal factors that typically influence home sales.

The median price of an existing, single-family detached home in California during August 2001 was $276,590, an 8.6 percent increase over the $254,690 median for August 2000, C.A.R. reported.

The August 2001 median price increased 3.5 percent compared to July 2001. C.A.R., in conjunction with Real Estate Solutions' MetroScan software and information product, reported that 88 percent of California cities and communities showed an increase in their respective median home prices from a year ago.

Resale housing figures

C.A.R.'s Unsold Inventory Index for existing, single-family detached homes in August 2001 was 3.4 months, compared to 3.1 months for the same period a year ago. The index indicates the number of months needed to deplete the supply of homes on the market at the current sales rate. Thirty-year fixed mortgage interest rates averaged 6.95 percent during August 2001, down from 8.01 percent in August 2000, according to the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp. Adjustable mortgage interest rates averaged 5.71 percent in August 2001, compared to 7.28 percent in August 2000.

The median number of days it took to sell a single-family home was 28 days in August 2001, down from 29 days for the same period a year ago.

Regional MLS sales and price information is contained in the tables that accompany this press release. Regional sales data is not adjusted to account for seasonal factors that can influence home sales. The MLS median price and sales data for detached homes is generated from a survey of more than 90 associations of Realtors throughout the state. MLS median price and sales data for condominiums is based on a survey of 64 associations. The median price for both detached homes and condominiums represents closed escrow sales.

"We're seeing the positive impact of the interest rate cuts that began earlier this year," said Leslie Appleton-Young, C.A.R.'s vice president and chief economist. "Fixed mortgage interest rates have fallen 1 percent compared to last year, and adjustable rates have dropped even further."

In a separate report covering more localized statistics generated by C.A.R. and Real Estate Solutions' MetroScan service, 289 of 330 California cities and communities showed an increase in their respective median home prices from a year ago.

Using the MetroScan database, median home prices are generated from new and existing condominium and single-family closed escrow sales. These localized MetroScan statistics are based on county records data rather than MLS information.

Note: Large changes in local median home prices typically indicate both local home price appreciation, and often, large shifts in the composition of housing market activity. Some of the variations in median home prices may be exaggerated due to compositional changes in housing demand.

The California Association of Realtors(http:/www.car.org) is one of the largest state trade organizations in the United States.

Final thoughts

Ceiling fans, efficient thermostats and adequate insulation are all pluses. Reflect on how much has been done, or needs to be completed, energy-wise when you look at a particular house.

Although this should not be the critical consideration in buying, it certainly deserves to be an item on your list. If you do not think energy efficiency now, count on wasted dollars later.

A more comprehensive explanation of energy efficiency is available online at www.pge.com and www.efficientwindows.com. For additional articles on buying and selling homes, visit my Web site at www.eastbay-re. com.

Sensing the beauty all around us

TARPOFF AND TALBE

Return to Number 201 published in July 1997

This week I saw a friend I hadn't seen for a long time, really looked at her, then blurted, "You look so pretty."

My quick recognition was unusual enough that I kept thinking about it. It came to me then that I am seeing more beautiful things in my life these days. Why is this, I wonder? Maybe it's just because I'm old enough now. Or maybe I need more beauty now, and so I am finding it. It was good to realize that especially in this last year — overly full, often chaotic — I have managed to fit in many visual pleasures.

For example, on tour this week, we pulled up in front of a small wooden house on Addison Street in Berkeley. It is painted all white — no contrasting trim — and on the front porch stood the agent, Kathryn Hill, with a broom in hand.

Kathryn is tall and slim, she has long, blunt-cut brown hair, and she was wearing a soft blue cotton dress. There are four or five wooden steps up the front of this cottage-look house, and on either side at the top, Kathryn had placed pots of red begonias.

Part of my pleasure was the red flowers, white house and blue dress together; another was seeing the simple act of a woman sweeping the porch. I didn't think through it all then but now I see that it was a safe and sweet picture, one that I might have stored in my mind as a child.

Another visual treasure on the same morning: In an attic apartment, thin, makeshift pine shelves, open on both sides. Next to them, an ancient gas hot plate, the manufacturer's name in raised script in the cast iron. On the shelves, stacks of variously sized and colored pottery plates, some with scallops on the edges. A truly lovely sighting.

A few weeks ago, we held open a beautiful turn of the century house in Rockridge, a house full of old wainscoting, box beams and plate rails, and a fine and shiny new kitchen. People loved this house, the warm old wood details and the fabulously appointed kitchen. They exclaimed and pointed out their favorite features to one another.

But as I stood there greeting people and looking at the house again, I decided that there was one exceptionally appealing thing in that house, one so good that, although no one specifically commented on it, it sold that house: A bay of kitchen windows.

There are four sets of original wooden casements in a shallow bay on the back wall of the house. They've been painted many times, they're scarred in places, don't even meet well in others. The center pair was flung open to a breeze.

When you walk into this kitchen, your eyes take in the sleek white tile, smooth white cabinets, and the large stainless steel stove. Then they skip beyond to a dining table, the windows, the shape of the bay, the air and light coming inside. You can't help but place yourself in France, in New England near the sea, or out in the country — almost anywhere you've been and remember fondly.

There were seven offers on that house and a number of reasons so many people wanted it for their own, but I believe that it was those kitchen windows that were at the heart of the sale.

Wouldn't it be wonderful if we could tell people who are building or remodeling which visual details will bring them the most pleasure as they live with them, and later, when they sell, be most appealing to others? I don't know how to do this, but I am greatly interested when I recognize something in a house that succeeds very well. Such successes are often subtle but they remind us of something good — as a favorite tune or remembered aroma does.

Frequently the best "house sticks-outs" have to do with bringing the outdoors inside. Chris Cohn had a house open about a month ago on California Street in Berkeley, a lovely little cottage scrubbed spotlessly clean, airy, with a bathroom that was larger than usual, a nice kitchen, and a long-view garden. Plants grow along the sides of the yard making a frame. At the back is a large, beautifully shaped tree — — a redwood. I think — and the center of the space has been left open and green.

All of this would have been plenty and more, but there was one more, particularly alluring aspect to the house: A bedroom along the back contains a wall of wooden windows and a door to the garden. Painted horizontal boards cover the walls and ceiling, and they give the room the look and feel of a summer home porch. There is little furnishing except for a double bed, high with soft blankets and pillows, which faces out to the windows and the tree.

I'll bet everyone who saw that bed in that room felt as I did that sleeping there would ensure everlasting happiness. I was torn between hurrying out to see the tree close up and jumping on the bed, pulling the covers up to my nose and lying quietly for a time.

Just to be sure I was remembering the porch bedroom as it really is, I called Chris and was surprised to find that the walls and ceiling of the bedroom are plaster, not wood at all.

Isn't this interesting? ... of the room is so evo... memories, I guess, that ... time I was in it, I must ... transported to screen ... summer cabins I have ... perhaps to others I have ... about. Images I didn't even ... had stored away were tan... twined by what I saw.

Free replacement window clinic

■ Save energy and money: Replace old drafty windows.

Mark your calendar for a free Marvin replacement window seminar Saturday, Oct. 13 from 9 to 11 a. m. at Truitt & White Company, 642 Hearst Ave. in Berkeley.

This seminar will offer homeowners and contractors an opportunity to learn about the advantages of replacement windows, tips and techniques for window installations, and the many options available.

Marvin professionals will demonstrate how to measure for replacement windows and present an overview of numerous Marvin Window options. Learn how to fight the rising costs of energy and improve the appearance and value of your home with Marvin replacement windows from Truitt & White Lumber Company.

Drafty windows cause heat loss. Marvin replacement windows are guaranteed to keep air and water out against winds up to 50 mph and eight inches of rain per hour. Marvin windows help to insulate your home, keeping it cooler in the summer and warmer in the winter. Smooth operating Marvin windows are the quality choice of homeowners and contractors. The clever tilt feature in all Marvin double hung units makes window cleaning easy.

Truitt and White's door and window showroom is open from 7 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday and Saturday until noon to give homeowners and contractors the opportunity to inspect full-size displays of the latest offerings.

Refreshments will be served. For seminar reservations, call 510-649-2674.

The six-week raffle re- ed in a donation of $99,130.50 bitat for Humanity — $5,950 ich came directly from the raising efforts of the com- s Oakland/Piedmont office. e money will go toward Cold- Banker Northern California's year-end donation benefit- ers Habitat for Humanity con- uction projects in 2002.

Through the years our sales as- ates and staff have developed list of charitable benefits to h they have donated a con- rable amount of energy and re- ces," said Avram Goldman, well Banker Northern Califor- president and chief operating er. "In addition to these amaz- efforts, our team consistently stands behind Habitat for Humanity — our nationally designated community partner. Our combined efforts have resulted in an amazing contribution that will go far in bringing the dream of home ownership to fruition for families throughout Northern California."

Coldwell Banker has more than 80 offices in Northern California - from Monterey to Tahoe — that participated in the raffle. Sales associates, managers and staff purchased tickets on behalf of their clients, family, friends and themselves, who were in turn entered into a drawing for a number of prizes including a 4-day/3-night cruise to Ensenada, Mexico, a weekend stay at Pajaro Dunes in Monterey, a 32" color television and much more. The number one fund-raising sales associate in the Oakland-Piedmont office, Mary Foss, raised over $2,700 on her own.

It is a dynamic and appropriate opportunity in which residential specialists can return their blessings to their communities," said Bev Muncer, Coldwell Banker Oakland/Piedmont manager. "It is an honor to stand at the helm of such a caring office that is so dedicated to eliminating poverty housing in our area."

Coldwell Banker is the only national real estate firm to embrace Habitat for Humanity as its official corporate charity. The company has funded and built numerous Habitat homes since the beginning of its affiliation with the non-profit organization in 1993.

In Northern California alone, Coldwell Banker has raised over $265,000 for local Habitat for Humanity chapters including Mt. Diablo, Silicon Valley, El Dorado County, San Francisco and Peninsula and has participated in the construction of four home builds over the last three years.

Most recently the company donated $5,000 to Mt. Diablo Habitat for Humanity in response to the organization's theft of $9,000 worth of equipment.

Habitat's loss prevented it from proceeding with a Concord home under construction and thus Coldwell Banker donated $5,000 to keep the build on schedule.

This summer more than 500 Coldwell Banker Realtor associates and staff have volunteered for chapter construction projects in Redwood City, San Francisco and El Dorado County. Additional "sweat equity" hours will be spent later this fall completing those homes.

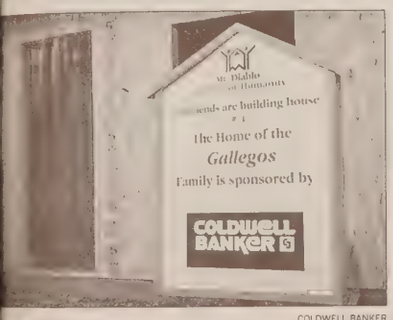

Coldwell Banker's 2001 Habitat for Humanity fund-raising goal is $300,000. The organization intends to raise additional money by hosting wine-tasting events later this fall. Many of the company's Realtor associates also purchase holiday cards on their clients' behalf — the sale of each ticket benefits Habitat for Humanity as well.

Earlier this year Coldwell Banker Northern California was awarded, for the second consecutive year, the coveted Golden Hammer award. This award was presented by the organization's parent company based in New Jersey for most funds raised among all Coldwell Banker companies in the country.

The award, presented at the annual Coldwell Banker International Business Conference held in Las Vegas, honors companies and sales associates alike for their charitable efforts.

The public is invited to participate in Coldwell Banker's fund-raising efforts. To learn more about Coldwell Banker's 2001 Habitat for Humanity fund-raising campaign or to make a financial contribution, please contact your local Coldwell Banker office or call 925-275-3085. All proceeds benefit Habitat for Humanity.

Coldwell Banker Coldwell Banker Residential Brokerage, Northern California sold over 33,000 homes in 2000. The corporation owns and operates over 80 offices with a combined total of over 3,400 sales associates in Alameda, Contra Costa, El Dorado, Marin, Monterey, Nevada, Placer, Sacramento, San Benito, San Francisco, Santa Clara, San Mateo and Sonoma counties.

COLDWELL BANKER

S SUMMER MORE THAN 500 COLDWELL BANKER ALTOR ASSOCIATES AND STAFF volunteered for nstruction projects like this one. Additional "sweat equity" hours ue spent this fall completing these homes.

Coldwell Banker Residential Brokerage, Montclair is pleased to welcome Claudia Bowman as its newest sales associate. In her new position, Ms. Bowman will specialize in residential sales in Montclair.

"We are thrilled to have Claudia join our team," said Beverly Muncer, Coldwell Banker Montclair manager. "It is an exciting time to be with Coldwell Banker as we continue to build on our dominant presence in the Oakland Hills in Oakland." Claudia's combined creativity, tention to detail and keen business sense all work to her clients' dvantage.

As a lifelong resident of the East Bay, Bowman has developed a rticular knowledge and appreciation for the Montclair district.

Ms. Bowman graduated from San Francisco State University with a achelors degree in Art and subsequently earned her teaching redential. She lives in Montclair with her adopted Chinese daughter nd attends Montclair Elementary School.

Ms. Bowman has been investing in real estate and rehabilitating omes since 1974. "I believe you should take your life experiences and pply them to whatever you do for a living, which led me to real estate as profession." The primary skill I offer clients is the ability to navigate a mooth real estate transaction. I also enjoy sharing the expertise I have eveloped in cost-effective home improvements, landscaping and stetic choices that allow a property to reveal its best features.

If you are looking for a Real Estate agent who knows how important our home is to you, Claudia is there to help. Call her at 339-4729.

Dorothy's hard road to OZ

Dorothy's back in town, and her Oz just keeps getting better.

Dorothy Delasin is in Vallejo this week, playing in the Samsung Women's World Championship at Hiddenbrooke Golf Club. This tournament is very exclusive, with only the top 20 golfers in the world invited.

This is pretty heady stuff, for the former East Bay Junior golf champ hasn't changed that much.

"I miss junior golf," she said. Sound weird? Remember it's only a couple of years removed from those days.

Now in her second year on the LPGA Tour, Delasin has arrived. She comes to Hiddenbrooke 17th on the money list, with $452,792 in official earnings. And that is a far cry from being a junior in college, which almost happened.

A funny thing happened in Delasin's junior golf career — she won the U.S. Junior, and then the U.S. Amateur. She became the most sought-after high school golfer in the country, coaches drooling over the prospect.

But after agonizing over the decision, she decided to turn pro instead of going to college. This opened the door to widespread criticism, mostly from those coaches. They said she was too young. They said she needed maturing.

But Dorothy knew what she needed, and it wasn't for her.

Delasin grew up in a family with limited financial resources, the daughter of immigrant parents from the Philippines. At one time, while she was developing her game at Lincoln Park GC in San Francisco under the watchful eye of mentor pro Lance Wong, her whole family lived in a one-bedroom apartment. All seven of them. Dorothy knew her family needed money.

When she won her first tournament, the Giant Eagle Classic, in her first year on tour, she bought her family a house in South San Francisco. It is her home. But she hasn't been in it much this year.

"I haven't been home since April," she said. "I've just been living out of a suitcase. It sure is good to be back in the Bay Area."

But there is a caveat.

"I have to work," she said. "It sucks. I have to stay up here in Vallejo."

The only visible sign of Delasin's new wealth is a new pair of sunglasses. Rimless, classy.

The other sign of Delasin's wealth cannot be measured in money. She now feels accepted by her peers on the tour.

It happened when she won her second tournament, a successful defense of that Giant Eagle Classic this year.

"They say the first one is tough but the second one is much tougher," she said. "It meant a lot to me."

She never expected to win. Nobody expected me to win," she said. "I just came from behind."

The key to this year, Delasin said, is her new caddie. That would be Clint Begay, brother of PGA Tour star Notah Begay.

"He sees things," she said. "He has helped my game tremendously, especially on the course."

Delasin has no guru, no David Leadbetter hovering over the mechanics of her swing on the practice tee. She just listens to Clint. And that is not to say her mechanics are bad. None other than Karrie Webb says they're pretty darn good.

"All she needs is some matu-

Berkeley splits with Bishop O'Dowd

Brady scores four, but girls bow to BOD; Schooley rips 6 goals to lead boys to victory

By Mike McGreehan
STAFF WRITER

BERKELEY — At its best water polo provides fans with lots of end-to-end action with few stoppages. On Tuesday, the girls teams of Berkeley and Bishop O'Dowd high schools played such a match in Alameda Contra Costa Athletic League action at Willard Pool.

The teams provided a lot of action. And many exciting moments, too. At the end, Bishop O'Dowd had to hold off a late Berkeley challenge to come away with a 7-6 win.

Second-half goalie Kaitlyn Riddle played a key role for the Dragons (2-0 ACCAL, 3-2 overall) by getting in the way of a pair of Lindsay Rodgers shots in the waning seconds to preserve the victory.

"We had a great series of saves by Kaitlyn, who is a first-year player," said O'Dowd coach Tony Ravnik. "She has been working very hard, as has Kate King, the starting goalie."

Against Berkeley, King played the first half and Riddle the second.

Overall, though, the game was fairly even as Berkeley (1-1, 8-5) led at the half and nearly erased a two-goal deficit at the end. In the end, though, it wasn't the Yellow Jackets' day.

"We weren't playing as tough as we have been in the past," said Berkeley coach Brandon Williams. "We were all playing — starters to bench — at the same level. It wasn't our best today."

Morgan Brady got Berkeley off to a good start by scoring the first goal of the match at 6:06 of the first quarter. O'Dowd's Shannon Davis, however, responded with a backhand shot at 3:49 to knot the score at 1-1.

The offensive pace picked up in the second quarter as Liz Hay scored two quick goals for O'Dowd, the second off a well-placed outlet pass from goalie King.

But Berkeley came back with Aya Costantino beating King one-on-one and Brady equalizing on a backhand to knot the match at 3-3.

O'Dowd regained the advantage when Erica Costa scored with 2:39 left in the half, then appeared to receive an added boost when King leaped high to save from Lana Tilley. Berkeley, however, persisted, and received its reward when Rodgers nailed a tough-angle shot from the right side into the far corner of the net with 33 seconds left in the half.

But the Yellow Jackets weren't finished. For just as time expired in the half, the referee awarded Berkeley a four-meter shot after an O'Dowd foul in front of the net. Brady nailed that shot, and Berkeley went into halftime sporting a 5-4 lead.

That advantage wouldn't last, though, as O'Dowd received two goals from Davis and one from Lindsey White (off a well-placed pass from Davis) to take a 7-5 lead through the third quarter and well into the fourth.

Defense ruled the fourth quarter for the most part, though Berkeley made a game of it again when Brady nailed her fourth

Berkeley settles down, wins

Williams snaps off 8 kills, G-Young 7 as 'Jackets knock off Alameda

BERKELEY — In a battle for first place in the ACCAL, Alameda gave Berkeley all it could handle — for one game.

But powered by hitters Vanessa Williams, Desiree Guilliard-Young, Nadia Qabazard and Amalia Jarvis, the Yellow Jackets (12-4, 3-0 in the ACCAL) then took control.

Trailing 13-9 in the first game, Berkeley tied, then forged ahead behind the serve of setter Danielle LaRue. The Yellow Jackets won the first game, never trailed the Hornets (2-1, ACCAL) in the second game and rallied to win the third to secure a convincing 15-13, 15-3, 15-7 win in Berkeley on Oct. 2.

"We have a tendency to have slow starts," said LaRue, who chalked up 24 assists. "But we had a timeout and I regained control. Our coach (Justin Caraway) is pretty good at getting us focused."

"We started playing smarter defense, keeping the ball in play," Caraway said. "And Danielle settled down and started setting the middle (hitters) the way she should."

The victory left the Yellow Jackets, who won the Alameda-Contra Costa Athletic League title last fall, tied for first place with Encinal, which easily disposed of Pinole Valley 15-5, 15-2, 15-0. In the first of two meetings, Berkeley plays Encinal in Alameda on Oct. 9.

Against Alameda, Berkeley trailed through much of the first game. Though enjoying a clear height advantage, the 'Jackets struggled both at the net and from the middle of the floor. Their passes weren't connecting and the serving was inconsistant.

"We had a lot of people not in practice yesterday," Caraway explained. "The chemistry of the team wasn't what it should have been."

Berkeley made 10 passing errors and seven service errors in the first game — and it showed in the score.

The Hornets edged into a 4-2 lead early, then expanded the gap behind Yellow Jackets miscues.

Adding to the drama, Alameda had heard Berkeley was out for blood — making it just that much easier for the Hornets to get up for the contest.

Hornet setter Serena Trueman said: "We read in the paper that Berkeley wanted to kill us. We were juiced up."

A junior, Trueman served the Hornets into a 7-3 lead, with teammate Melanie Richardson delivering a big dig, followed by a kill.

LaRue struck back with four quick service points to tie the score 7-7 (Guilliard-Young

Local runners up on Stanford 'Farm'

Horowitz wins D-5 race; Panthers boys, girls among leaders in D-4 at Stanford Invitional

By Mike McGreehan
STAFF WRITER

For those who follow high school cross country, Clara Horowitz's first-place finish in the Stanford Invitational Division V girls race last Saturday came as no surprise.

Horowitz, a Berkeley resident and senior at Head-Royce School in Oakland, didn't run the fastest race of her career. But Horowitz, who ran faster in this year's event than last year's, covered the 5,000 meters in 19 minutes, 5 seconds, eight seconds better than second-place runner Yfa Kretzschmar of University-San Francisco.

Prep cross country

Berkeley resident Clara Horowitz was a winner and the St. Mary's boys and girls were among leaders at the Stanford Invitational.

"I've never really run well on golf courses," Horowitz said of the race, which takes place on the Stanford Golf Course, "but I'm starting to get my step back. I still have a month to go before I need to peak."

As a junior last year, Horowitz generally ran in the shadows of Sara Bei of Montgomery-Santa Rosa and Anita Siraki of Hoover-Glendale. Both Bei and Siraki are now at Stanford, and Horowitz has committed herself to becoming the fastest runner in California this season.

During the summer, Horowitz trained up to 80 miles per week. By the start of the high school season, she had tapered down to 60. Now, she is at 45.

"I'm starting to speed train more," she said. "I'm also doing weight training right now and I'm circuit training — a lot of push-ups and sit-ups."

For Horowitz, who also won a Bay Counties League-East meet at Athenian on Wednesday, the work has just begun to pay dividends. Still, there are some things even a runner in peak condition can't do. For even though Horowitz stood out individually at Stanford, the Division V team competition — for both girls and boys — basically was a case of University running to victory with all the other teams scrambling for the remaining spots.

As it was with Horowitz individually, first place never was in doubt in the team competition. University won the boys title by a 20-point margin and took the girls meet by a whopping 42.

Aside from Horowitz, the best individual female runners were those of University — three of whom finished directly behind the Head-Royce senior. Kretzschmar was Horowitz's closest competitor, finishing in 19:13. University teammates C.C. Ragan (20:47) and Zoe Whitehurst (20:49) were third and fourth, respectively.

Led by this 2-3-4 finish, University easily won the team championship with a score of 29. Sally Tracy (21:24) ran ninth for University and Grace Hunter (22:25) was 15th.

Castilleja-Palo Alto was a distant second in the team standings with 71 points. College Prep was close behind at 72. Annie Wright School of Washington state placed fourth at 108 and San Francisco's Lick-Wilmerding was fifth with 124. Head-Royce was sixth with 151.

Convent Sacred Heart-San Francisco was seventh — and last — among the complete teams with 168 points.

Division IV

St. Mary's Bridget Duffy finished seventh individually in 19:59.

Yellow Jackets hang 'L' on El Cerrito Gauchos

Baird, Mason score to lead Berkeley past El Cerrito

By Phil Jensen
STAFF WRITER

EL CERRITO — The Berkeley High School football team kept hanging around and hanging around Friday — until it hung a "W" on its win-loss record.

After trailing by 15 points midway through the second quarter, and 11 points at the end of the third quarter, the Yellow Jackets strung together two fourth-quarter touchdowns and held off a final Gauchos charge for a 32-29 victory in the Alameda Contra Costa Athletic League opener for both schools.

"I think we have a lot of integrity on this team and a lot of heart, and it was up to us to bring it out," said Berkeley quarterback Raymond Pinkston, a senior transfer from Loyola High School in Detroit, who threw for 207 yards and three touchdowns in the win. "The biggest thing is that our coaches believe in us."

Berkeley	32
El Cerrito	29

The ACCAL opener was critical for both squads, which shared the league title last year with Pinole Valley. Berkeley improved to 1-3 overall (1-0 ACCAL), while El Cerrito fell to 0-4, 0-1.

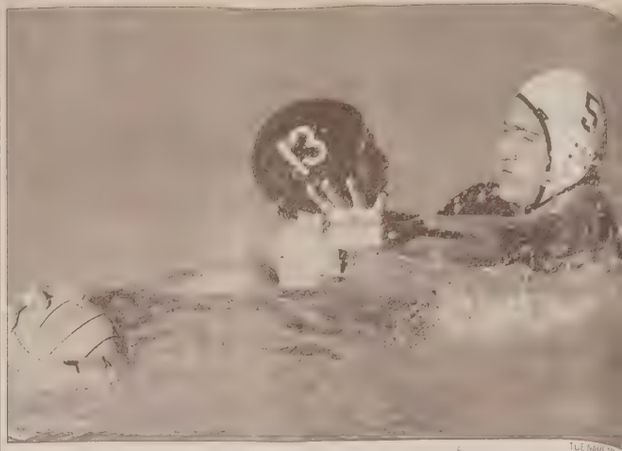

A 6-yard run by John Norman and a point-after-touchdown kick by Evan Horowitz gave El Cerrito a 29-18 lead with 11 seconds left in the third quarter. Norman had scored earlier in the quarter on an 82-yard kickoff return.

But the Yellow Jackets produced touchdowns on their next two possessions to take a 32-29 lead with 5:45 left in the game.

Berkeley drove 67 yards on six plays with Germey Baird scoring on a 2-yard run to cut the deficit to single digits. Baird then reached the end zone on a two-point conversion run, as Berkeley trailed by only three points, 29-26. Baird rushed for 55 of his game-high 106 yards in the fourth quarter.

The Yellow Jackets defense held El Cerrito without a first down on its next possession, then the Berkeley offense marched 82 yards in five plays. Roger Mason bolted up the middle on only his second carry of the day for a 19-yard touchdown run and the eventual winning points.

El Cerrito didn't back down, however. On its final drive, sophomore quarterback Randy Gatewood moved the Gauchos 60 yards to the Berkeley 28-yard line. But Berkeley defensive lineman Matt Toma sacked Gatewood on the final play of the game to end El Cerrito's hopes.

BERKELEY'S PETER LETZ managed to maintain control of the ball in front of BOD's Alex Tinonga. The boys topped the Dragons 13-2.

Warriors sweep past Panthers

Mac racks up 316 yards in win; Cougars lose

BERKELEY — Combining for 316 total yards and six touchdowns, the McClymonds football team's lethal duo of l'lario Vital and Darnell Henderson was the one-two punch St. Mary's (1-3) didn't have an answer for in a 57-13 drubbing Saturday afternoon.

The pair ran roughshod through the Panthers' porous lines as Vital racked up 168 yards and two touchdowns.

Meanwhile, Henderson was a two-way threat for the Warriors, rushing for 64 yards and catching three passes for 103 yards. He had four scores on the day with three of them coming from the air.

"I gotta give credit to McClymonds (3-1). They're a very physical team," said St. Mary's coach Jay Lawson, who saw his offense shackled for just 132 yards of offense, while his defense gave up 462 yards. "They made great plays and controlled the ball."

It didn't take long for the Warriors to strike the first blow.

On the first play from scrimmage, McClymonds quarterback Demonte Johnson rolled to his right and connected with Henderson toward the sideline. Henderson slipped a pair of tackles and was off to the races, sending the visiting throng into a frenzy.

The two-point conversion failed, however, and the Warriors had a 6-0 lead.

Later in the first quarter, the Panthers took the lead when Omar Flood stormed untouched up the gut for a 43-yard score to make it 7-6, St. Mary's.

That would be the last time the Panthers led, however, as Henderson went back to work on the very next drive.

On first-and-10 at the Panthers' 48, Henderson took the hand-off and punched his way through the left side into the secondary. With several Panthers in tow, Henderson shed his would-be tacklers and made his way to the end zone to give the Warriors a lead they would not relinquish.

Henderson wasn't done. In a marathon-like first quarter, McClymonds' Nigel Hicks returned a fumble to the Panthers' 7, Henderson's number was called again as he hauled in a 7-yard scoring pass from Muhammod Nitoto to balloon the lead to 20-7.

The Warriors' offense continued to roll from there as they built an insurmountable 32-7 lead at halftime.

Tomales 23, Albany 22

TOMALES — Albany blew a 22-point lead as Tomales roared back with 23-unanswered points to beat the Cougars.

Running back Alex Kaplan put Tomales on the board with a 3-yard touchdown and two-point conversion to cut the lead to 22-8 at the break.

In the third quarter, the Braves struck again with Kaplan breaking off an 88-yard scoring run with another two-point conversion to narrow the gap to 22-16.

Tomales finally took the lead late in the fourth quarter when quarterback Kevin Bellatore connected with Jared Ames for a 6-yard touchdown.

The Cougars tried to reclaim the lead in the final two minutes, but were denied by an Ames interception to seal the win.

Tomales amassed 405 yards of offense, while Kaplan ran for 190 yards.

goal — this one off another backhand — to pull the Yellow Jackets within one with 50 seconds to go.

"Before the game, we thought (O'Dowd) was a team we could beat by a couple of goals," Williams said. "We weren't taking the initiative to get ahead."

Still — especially with the flurry in front of the O'Dowd net at the end — the teams provided those in attendance with a most exciting contest. From a spectator's standpoint, it was high school water polo at its best.

Boys

Like a warm-up band at a concert, the O'Dowd-Berkeley boys match was not as exciting as the girls' match that followed.

Of course, that had everything to do with the lopsided nature of the match, won by Berkeley 13-2.

"(O'Dowd) is not as strong as the last couple years," said Berkeley coach Bill Gaebler. "We sort of took advantage of that to control the game."

Jim Bowerman scored the first goal of the game for O'Dowd (0-2, 3-6), but Berkeley (3-0, 8-9) soon was in command.

David Schooley and goalie Chris May were particularly impressive for the Yellow Jackets. Schooley displayed a blistering backhand in scoring a game-high six goals, and May had some big plays in front of the goal to frustrate O'Dowd shooters.

"They're both seniors, and they both have three years of varsity experience," said Gaebler. "They're also tall — Schooley is 6-6 and Chris is 6-5 — so they have height and long arms going for them."

May's height and athleticism were well in evidence on two plays in particular. With 21 seconds to go in the first half, Berkeley goalie reached high to stop a shot by George Nu... With 6:06 to go in the game, ... once again extended himself to deny Alex Tinonga.

recorded a pair of kills), but Alameda went right back to work, adding a point here, a point there until it was up 13-9.

The Hornets' run ended with a decisive kill by Williams, who rocked Richardson with a spike. For Alameda, its high-water mark had been reached.

Berkeley didn't so much as chip away at Alameda as it did blast away. Serving first, LaRue gave her team an 8-0 leg up. She had an ace during her run, but Jarvis, Williams and Guilliard-Young all notched kills, as well.

Alameda scored, then Guilliard-Young ran off four points from the service line (LaRue picked up her lone kill of the night).

The Yellow Jackets raced to the win, then took their time earning the clincher, rallying back from a 4-0 deficit to win 15 of the final 18 points.

"We're planning on winning league," LaRue said. "We won last year. But we still have to work on passing and our offense."

Could've fooled the Hornets.

Postgame:

WE WILL ROCK YOU: As a rule fans, as well as the opposition, tend to focus on Desiree Guilliard-Young, the Yellow Jackets' 6-foot-5, Baylor-bound hitter. The angular senior is always near the ball and is scary even when acting as a decoy hitter.

But the Yellow Jackets have several other scary hitters — hitters who no doubt profit from Guilliard-Young's presence.

Does the opposition underrate middles such as Williams, Qabazard and Jarvis?

"Probably," LaRue said. "When you step on the court with someone who's 6-5, you generally are looking at her. They're pretty surprised."

Caraway said the opposition is surprised by how deep the Yellow Jackets are in middle blockers.

"We go Desiree, Vanessa, Amalia and Nadia," he said. "With the exception of the bottom of the depth chart, I really don't have any bad hitters."

Caraway added: "Nadia's errors are down. She went three attempts, three kills in the last game. Vanessa hits hard and she's up quick. Most high school middles don't get up as fast as she does and teams don't k... how to block her."

As a team, St. Mary's took sixth place in the girls competition with 201 points.

Also for the Panthers, freshman Gabi Rios Solelo (20:45) was 15th. Amy Brennick (22:55) was 63rd, Nicole Shanahan (23:53) 88th and Meghan Harrington (25:08) 112th.

Danila Musante (18:59) of Bishop O'Dowd was the individual winner.

Iolani School-Honolulu took the team title with 64 points. O'Dowd was second with 71. Bret Harte-Angels Camp finished third (84), Oak Park (also 84) fourth and Templeton (135) fifth.

In boys' competition, the Panthers' Rudy Vasquez finished 11th individually in 16:51. As a team, St. Mary's was 13th with 368 points.

Oak Park won the boys team championship with 52 points, well ahead of second-place Carmel (141). O'Dowd was third (160).

Billy Nelson (15:43) of Taft High School was the individual winner.

Also racing for the Panthers were Mike Sun (19:05; 77th place), Eddie Torres (19:23; 93rd), Bob O'Leary (19:35; 102nd), Greg Williams (19:38; 103rd), Jake Texara (19:45; 112th) and Dan Brown (21:12; 150th).

Postscript

ON WITH THE SEASON: As mentioned earlier, Head-Royce ran at Athenian in BCL-East competition on Wednesday.

Horowitz won the race, 2:15 ahead of her nearest competitor.

"I felt awesome," said Horowitz, who says she has felt the effects of her intense training regimen in previous races. "I was a little worried because it was in the 90s in Danville today, but I was just feeling great. I pretty much felt I could fly."

Oakland through the S.F. lens

A KQED-TV special on Oakland and Mayor Jerry Brown tonight (Fri) at 9 opens thusly: "The Bay Area's Brooklyn ... is overshadowed by the wealthier, more cosmopolitan city across the Bay..."

This is SO laughably San Francisco — dubbing itself more cosmopolitan" than another city. Not only do I dispute the smug assertion (never heard the Brooklyn comment), but when I moved to San Francisco from Montreal in 1978, I was amused at how sophisticated and cosmopolitan San Franciscans considered themselves — in their typically provincial way — without having an ounce of perspective on other cities. Montreal is many times more sophisticated and cosmopolitan than San Francisco ever dreamed of being — there are many foreign cities. OK, compared to Chico or Little Rock San Fran is sophisticated, but so what?

But once you get past the lurid — if totally predictable — S.F. self-aggrandizement tonight, KQED-produced documentary series "Bay Window's" report called "The Celebrity and The City" (sounds more like a doc about Sharon Stone) isn't bad. In fact, it's surprisingly upbeat about Oakland — especially considering that it was produced in a city drowning in its own narcissism.

Tonight's film does grant that Oakland is the "most integrated city in the country," which is true. But it fails to mention that its race relations, in area in such disrepair nationally, are also probably the best of any U.S. city. This is a huge plus for Oakland, one the city should stress — and be proud of — at every possible opportunity. In this crucial area, Oakland is a role model for the rest of the country.

Plus, second only to my old home town of Honolulu, O-Town also has the best weather of any U.S. city. And probably the best professional baseball team, at least this year. And maybe the best football team.

Tonight's film (repeated at 6 Sunday night on Channel 9) dwells a bit too long on the new Oakland Military Academy. "Dwells" because this is a local show, and local TV news has been all over the OMA story since its opening day.

As for born-again capitalist Brown, it's hard to believe this is the same guy who hosted "We The People" on Berkeley's leftist KPFA. Luring capital and 10,000 new residents to Oakland's once-forlorn downtown is what Brown promised in his campaign, "and that's what he's doing," one mayoral opponent admits tonight.

Brown, while pushing development of live/work lofts, is also taking predictable criticism, both for "gentrifying" the city's long-neglected downtown, and for allegedly ignoring the crime-plagued neighborhoods out in East Oakland.

But the feisty Brown effectively answers his critics headon in tonight's worthwhile report: "I'd rather deal with the politics of prosperity than the politics of poverty," Brown retorts. Oddly, tonight's report doesn't even mention the booming, revitalized Jack London Square theater/restaurant district that's become a magnet for nightlife for so many East Bay residents.

"Oakland has been organized for survival," Brown says. "Now, it's being organized for excellence."

Downtown developer John Protopappas, one of Brown's allies in these ambitous plans to revitalize Oakland's economy, is also interviewed at length on the "Bay Window" show. He says of Brown, "He's fascinated with the problems of urban America. I think he sees solving the problems of the city as the key to the future of the country."

Brown's interpersonal skills also seemed to have improved markedly while he's been mayor.

My personal experience with one of Brown's traits, his

NOT QUITE A FIT, but still, Denzel Washington and Ethan Hawke almost make it work in "Training Day."

'Day' not that strong, but it works

■ Denzel Washington is tough to buy as the evil one in gritty cop drama

By Mary F. Pols
STAFF WRITER

A taut drama of police corruption, "Training Day" is to be admired for reaching high toward that "Serpico" standard. But it's only two-thirds "Serpico." The other third is self-important nonsense.

Screenwriter David Ayer ("U-571") provides director Anthony Fuqua ("The Replacement Killers") with a neat construct. Jake, a rookie cop eager for advancement, has a one-day tryout with Alonzo (Denzel Washington), a hardened narcotics detective. The camera follows them everywhere as a get-acquainted tour turns into the ultimate character test for the rookie (Ethan Hawke).

Young Jake, a lowly patrol cop with only 19 months on the job, wears a look of earnest innocence, an immediate turn-off to the other members of Alonzo's elite division. "You're a long way from Starbucks," one of the tough guys tells him, and we can't disagree.

"Training Day" stays suspenseful by being smart enough to keep us guessing about Jake. Maybe he is, as one of his colleagues accuses him of being, a federal agent, sent to sniff out corruption in the LAPD. Or maybe he is just a young idealist trying to get a promotion. He reluctantly goes along with Alonzo's unorthodox methods, which include drinking beer on the job and serving false search warrants. Alonzo even forces him to smoke PCP-laced pot. Nervously assessing what Alonzo's antics are likely to do to his career, Jake says, in an aside, "I like my badge." It's woeful, but also funny. Emotionally, we're captivated by Jake and worried about his quandary, but he's not an open book to us. That's unusual in a movie like this. Jake is a well-written character, and Hawke's low-key performance matches it at every turn.

Updated look for classical Greek work "Orestes"

It's an unlikely cast of characters for a play that includes "hilarious" in its description: a son who avenges the murder of his father by killing his mother and her lover. But that's the promise held out for Charles L. Mee's adaptation of the classical "Orestes" by Euripides. It opens tonight in the Zellerbach Playhouse on the UC Berkeley campus. Curtain time is 8 p.m.

Of course, you have to take some liberties with the original tragedy by the great Greek dramatist. And Mees does just that, according to a news release from the UC Berkeley Department of Theater, Dance, and Performance Studies.

The adapter draws on varied sources ranging from Apollinaire to William Burroughs, from Vogue magazine to Soap Opera Digest.

And a classical Greek setting obviously wouldn't do. Add more characters, bring in music and movement and set the whole thing outside a palatial white Newport-style beach house on whose previously manicured lawns, now crosshatched with irrigation ditches, sit four white hospital beds.

"The setting," say the theater folks, "prepares the audience for a powerful yet hilarious diatribe on man, war, violence, vengeance and the absurdity of life."

Well, of course. What did you expect — "Little Mary Sunshine"?

Christopher Herold is directing the Berkeley production with sets by Kate Edmunds.

This "Orestes" was developed in collaboration with Robert Woodruff in a workshop he directed at the Mark Taper Forum in Los Angeles. Since then it has had a peripatetic round of productions from UC San Diego to the American Repertory Theatre in Cambridge, Mass., from the Saratoga International Theatre Institute in Toga, Japan, and Saratoga, NY. to Manhattan's En Garde Arts.

"Orestes" launches the 2001-02 mainstage season of UC's Department of Theater, Dance and Performance Studies. (Until this summer, it was called the Department of Dramatic Art, so look for wider horizons.)

"Orestes" plays at 8 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays and Sundays at 2 p.m. through Oct. 21. Tickets are $12 general; $8 for UC Berkeley faculty and staff, and $6 for seniors and students. Call toll-free 866-468-3399 or go on-line at www.ticketweb.com. Tickets can also be purchased at the venue box office one hour prior to showtimes.

EUGENE IONESCO'S one-act play "Frenzy for Two, or More" is part of the Eastenders Repertory Company's "One Hundred & Six Years of Comedy" festival. It stars Michaela Greeley, left, and Joseph Leonardi.

106 YEARS OF COMEDY: Another opening gala tonight finds Emeryville-based Eastenders Repertory Company presenting its third annual One-Act Festival, "One Hundred & Six Years of Comedy."

The festival features 10 short plays in rotating repertory in association with the Eureka Theatre Company. The plays will be staged at the Eureka Theatre, 215 Jackson St., San Francisco.

Series A, after opening tonight, plays Oct. 10, 13, 18, 21 and 26. The plays are "Mixed Doubles" by George Feydeau and Maurice Desvallieres; "Overruled" by George Bernard Shaw; "Early Morning" by Noel Coward, and "Franklin D. Roosevelt To Be Inaugurated Tomorrow" by Moss Hart.

Series B playing Oct. 6, 11, 14, 19, 24 and 27 includes "Local Boy Makes Good" by George S. Kaufman; "Women Undressed and Bodies To Be Despatched" by Dario Fo; "Frenzy For Two, Or More" by Eugene Ionesco.

Series C playing Oct. 7, 12, 17, 20, 25 and 28 includes "The Boundary" by Tom Stoppard and Clive Exton; "Medea" by Wendy Wasserstein and Christopher Durang, and "Reverse Transcription" by Tony Kushner.

Curtain time weekdays is 8 p.m.; Sunday matinees are at 3 p.m. Tickets for tonight's gala opening, including champagne reception, are $20; after that, $15 for any performance of each date's cluster of plays. Discounts available for those wishing to see any two or all three series. Call 510-434-0734.

BEAUTIFUL, BUT ELUSIVE: In a playwright's note to her original play, "Approach," Susan Wiegand used the phrase "fractured, kaleidoscope-like." Although she was applying the words to herself as reflected in the play's four characters, the phrase is an apt description of the play as well.

As staged, directed, and acted by Shotgun Players, "Approach" is a stunningly beautiful piece of work.

Michael Frassinelli's set — towering, pastel-mottled slabs, draped from above in a corner of Berkeley's Eighth Street Studio Theatre — establishes a calming, timeless and undefined place for the play to unfold.

Katie Bales Frassinelli's direction is confident and fluid throughout this unbroken 85-minute production.

Michael and Katie were married this summer and his scenic design could not be a more loving gift for his bride.

And the actors — Mary Eaton Fairfield as simply woman; Aaron Lucich (man); Brent Rosenbaum (boy), and Marin Van Young (girl) — move through the text of this search for love and trust with easy grace and impeccable diction, oscillating between angst and ecstasy.

So much for the kaleidoscopic aspect of "Approach."

Fractured — and the word is not used in a pejorative sense — is perhaps what Wiegand aimed to achieve, for life is like that, splintered and full of shards, some of which have sharp edges that can cut.

This is a work of internal di-

NOW PLAYING

Below are capsule reviews of movies playing at area theaters. The reviewers are Vera H-C Chan and Mary F. Pols, Times; Glenn Lovell, San Jose Mercury News; Robert W. Butler and Desmond Ryan, Knight Ridder Newspapers; Anthony Breznican, Matt Crenson, David Germain, Chris Grygiel, Christy Lemire, Sheila Norman-Culp, Malcolm Ritter, Bob Thomas and Matt Wolf, Associated Press; John Anderson, Bob Heisler and Gene Seymour, Newsday; Stephen Holden, Dave Kehr, Elvis Mitchell, A.O. Scott and Lawrence Van Gelder, New York Times; Jack Mathews, New York Daily News; Bob Strauss and Glenn Whipp, Los Angeles Daily News; Kenneth Turan and Kevin Thomas, Los Angeles Times; Henry Sheehan, Orange County Register; Mark Caro and Robert K. Elder, Chicago Tribune; Gary Dowell, Tom Maurstad and Tom Sime, Chris Vognar and Philip Wuntch, Dallas Morning News; and Desson Howe, Washington Post.

"AMERICAN PIE 2": Wafer-thin and hastily-baked, this sequel doesn't live up to the original, even with the whole cast back for a second go-round. The gang is still obsessed with sex, and probably will remain so until "American Pie 12," when they will become obsessed with their receding hairlines. There are a few amusing scenes, featuring Jason Biggs, Eugene Levy and Alyson Hannigan, but overall, the sweetness is gone and everything feels forced. Settle for renting the first one. — M. Pols. (R: strong sexual content, crude humor, language and drinking.) 1 hour, 40 minutes. C-

"THE ANNIVERSARY PARTY": An astute, sharp-witted movie about relationships, aspirations and insecurity that's nearly great. Jennifer Jason-Leigh and Alan Cumming co-wrote, co-direct and co-star in a story about a famous actress named Sally and writer/director Joe, a Hollywood couple who've recently reunited after a breakup. They invite all of their friends and a couple of enemies to celebrate with them. The acting is strong across the board, but the rarely seen Phoebe Cates is outstanding as Sally's best friend, an actress who gave it all up to be with her children. Unfortunately, Leigh and Cumming bail on the plot at the end, and there are two jarring revelations, one completely unbelievable, that deflate the movie's power. — M. Pols. (R: language, drug use and nudity.) 1 hour, 55 minutes. A-

"APOCALYPSE NOW REDUX": Francis Ford Coppola and editor Walter Murch have gone back to the original footage of the 1979 classic Vietnam film and added 49 minutes. The result is a major time commitment but also deeper, smoother and ultimately more fulfilling. More Playboy Playmates, more Robert Duvall, more time on the boat, a touch more Brando. Well worth a trip to the multiplex, even though not everything new is a flat-out success; the French plantation scene is flawed by bad acting, but Coppola's admirable intent, to explore the impact of colonization on the country and the colonizers, makes his story more well-rounded. You may find, if you watch the original after seeing this, that you miss the new additions. — M. Pols. (R: disturbing violent images, language, sexual content and some drug use.) 3 hours, 17 minutes. A

"BREAD AND TULIPS": This amiable new comedy suggests that an older, better Italy of imagination, rationality and civility survives on the fringes of a modern nation obsessed with consumerism, empty prosperity and easy pleasure. That city, this film says, is Venice, and it's the location where an unhappy housewife (Licia Maglietta) blossoms, and meets a melancholy waiter. Maglietta is quite good, but the film seems a little too sentimental and pat for its own good. — A.O. Scott. (PG-13: a few sexual situations.) 1 hour, 44 minutes. C+

"THE CLOSET": Sad sack Francois Pignon (Daniel Auteuil) is about to get fired from his job at the condom factory, until his neighbor comes up with an ingenious plan to save his job. All Pignon has to do is pretend to be homosexual and his employers wouldn't be able to fire him without appearing discriminatory. Yet as soon as his co-workers think he's gay, a drab little man turns into something exciting and new. A smart comedy of errors, with many good laughs. Gerard Depardieu co-stars as a gay-bashing soccer coach forced into sensitivity. In French with subtitles. — M. Pols. (R: sexuality and language.) 1 hour, 25 minutes. B+

"THE CURSE OF THE JADE SCORPION": Set in 1940 in a smoky, liquor-filled New York overrun by gumshoes and heiresses, this unspectacular but amiable Woody Allen film is in full nostalgia mode. Allen plays an investigator who, through an act of hypnosis, falls for a co-worker (Helen Hunt) who rankles him no end. Some clever, well-paced scenes ensue as Allen's character, under hypnosis' spell, robs his firm's wealthy clients. But the chemistry between Allen and Hunt couldn't light a match. No deep thoughts here, just Allen remembering the movies of his youth. — M. Pols. (PG-13: some sexual content.) 1 hour, 44 minutes. C+

"THE DEEP END": A tidy story of polish and sophistication, this tense thriller about a mother (Tilda Swinton) who protects her son from murder charges thrives on Swinton, whose slender, finely drawn features can hold a position like a statue. Bay Area filmmakers Scott McGehee and David Siegel give the film an eerie calm, making "The Deep End" both fastidious and smart. There are some surprises in the movie certain to make thriller fans rejoice. — E. Mitchell. (R: strong sexual content, violence.) 1 hour, 39 minutes. B+

"DON'T SAY A WORD": Up until its disappointing "oh please" conclusion, "Don't Say a Word" hums along, a well-oiled piece of thriller machinery intent on manipulation. A shrink (Michael Douglas) is forced to try and unlock a secret number buried deep in the mind of a troubled teen (Brittany Murphy). He's got one day to extract the information, or the kidnappers who snagged his 8-year-old will kill her. Watchable, but with an creepy edge. The tension is real, but the relationships aren't. Murphy gives a haunting performance as the psycho, but her performance is undermined by the swiftness with which Douglas gains her trust. Oh, and the number the kidnappers want? Easily available through public records. — M. Pols. (R for violence, including some gruesome images and language.) 2 hours. C

"THE GLASS HOUSE": Leelee Sobieski is excellent in this workmanlike thriller about a teen-age girl who, along with her brother, becomes the ward of an ominous couple (Stellan Skarsgard and Diane Lane) when the siblings' parents are killed in a car accident. The talented Sobieski makes her character come alive, and although the film itself might lack the inventiveness of a first-rate suspense flick, it does provide a slick, enjoyable thrill ride. — P. Wuntch. (PG-13: violence, language, drugs.) 1 hour, 45 minutes. B-

"GLITTER": Mariah Carey stars as a young singer whose rags-to-riches career has some parallels to her own. At times it is entertainingly bad, but that's from the perspective of someone who didn't have to hand over hard-earned cash to see it. Unless you really, really love the diva, stay away. — M. Pols. (PG-13: some sexuality, language and brief violence. 1 hour, 40 minutes. D

"HAIKU TUNNEL": The movie version of Josh Kornbluth's popular one-man show about office temps is simultaneously admirable and somewhat tedious. Despite some dead-on "Seinfeld"-esque office humor, the movie is a curiously flat enterprise that lies stretched to achieve feature length. Kornbluth plays his own alter ego, a neurotic who holes up in his nasty studio in the Mission, tempting to glimpses of the Washington we're used to admiring, almost as if he can't help himself. But the script has him boxed in a corner. He's so monstrous, he'll keep bouncing back no matter how many times you bop him on the head. When Scott Glenn, playing an old friend of Alonzo's who sits around in a dirty bathrobe in a dark bungalow, remarks that Jake reminds him of how Alonzo used to be, you're thinking, yeah, right. Alonzo never had a naive day in his life; don't shove that hack line down our throats.

Coming on the heels of the LAPD's Rampart scandal, no one will quibble about a portrayal of corruption. However, would corrupt cops reveal their corruption to a trainee on his first day? Moreover, training day is no eight-hour shift. Even after the posse of cops has assassinated a drug dealer — blaming it on young Jake — and stolen an enormous pile of money, these guys go back out on the streets. It suits the story to get them out there, but what about reality? Justifiable homicide by a police officer is a big deal. It involves paperwork, counseling, downtime. Jake would have been whisked downtown in a heartbeat.

There's a lot of showy casting from the music world. Dr. Dre plays a thug. Macy Gray makes an appearance, which registered for me, "Wow, that woman seems to be doing an impression of a really drunk Macy Gray." Snoop Dogg is quite fine in his snippet of a scene.

Elements of Ayer's script, and most of Fuqua's direction, are very strong. The movie stays unpredictable until the last few minutes, and it maintains an exciting tension. A small clue from early in the movie has a very satisfying payoff. Cinematographer Mauro Fiore bathes Los Angeles' gritty corners in fantastic light and colors, capturing the weird beauty of a place where sunshine constantly contradicts the misery of a slum.

Overall, "Training Day" isn't as good as it thinks it is, but it still has a lot going for it.

"JEEPERS CREEPERS": The surprise is that, even though the title garnered snickers with every movie audience I was with who saw the trailer, this isn't a bad little horror flick. Victor Salva has fashioned a nostalgic monster movie with 21st-century dollops of gore. Bickering siblings Trish (Gina Philips) and Darry (Justin Long) driving home from college to their share of stupid things — and the right thing — after witnessing bodies being dumped down a pipe. Mild stuff for seasoned horror fans, but it departs from the self-involved and reflexive path the genre has taken of late. — V. Chan. (R: terror violence, gore, language and brief nudity.) 1 hour, 30 minutes. B

"L.I.E.": A suburban youth (Paul Franklin Dano) is so unsettled by the turmoil around him — his mother is dead, his father in trouble with the FBI — that he turns to a middle-aged pedophile (Brian Cox) for comfort. That's the theme that earned this difficult but worthy film its NC-17 rating. What the ratings board doesn't address is the terrific acting by Dano and Cox. The movie is not without its flaws: It sometimes stretches too far for humor or to be arty, throwing off its own delicate balance. But "L.I.E.," a first-time directing effort by Michael Cuesta, is memorable. — M. Pols. (NC-17) 1 hour, 37 minutes. B

"MOULIN ROUGE": Director Baz Luhrmann's relentless musical drama exudes so much energy that it throws up what amounts to a nearly impenetrable force field around itself. There's certainly something endearing about how much effort he and his co-stars, Nicole Kidman and Ewan McGregor, playing star-crossed lovers in turn-of-the-century Paris, have put into trying to woo us. Kidman is spectacular; she's pure courage. But despite flashes of true creativity, some inspired musical choices and a consistently startling opulence, the movie fails. It's just too much: gaping mouths, flailing limbs, wildly intercut scenes that make it impossible to focus. Luhrmann is in such a hurry to show us everything in his toy chest that there isn't time to savor anything. — M. Pols. (PG-13: sexuality.) 2 hours. B-

"THE MUSKETEER": This latest version of "The Three Musketeers" is flat, an appalling fact since the film brings Hong Kong action to 17th-century France. It doesn't help that the screenplay only scratches the surface of the Dumas tale, making D'Artagnan (Justin Chambers) a bumpkin who wants to enlist as a musketeer. There's a strong cast working here, including Catherine Deneuve, Tim Roth, Mena Suvari and Stephen Rea. But they're wasted in a film that's in desperate need of a little flourish. — P. Wuntch. (PG-13: intense action, suggested sexuality.) 1 hour, 45 minutes. C-

"101 REYKJAVIK": A 30-year-old slacker (Hilmir Snaer Gunason) who still lives with his mother falls for his mother's flamenco teacher (the irresistible Victoria Abril), who's a lesbian. The problem is, mom (Hanna Maria Karlsdottir) is in love with her as well. This comedy from Iceland is filled with fine moments, and even gets serious at points. A great soundtrack, too. — K. Turan. (NR: nudity and scenes of explicit sexuality.) 1 hour, 32 minutes. B+

"THE OTHERS": Spanish director Alejandro Amenabar's first English-language feature is an old-fashioned haunted house story, with all the requisite claustrophobia and creepiness. On the foggy isle of Jersey in 1945, Nicole Kidman is waiting for her husband to return from the war, with nothing but her two children and her strange trio of new servants for company. Kidman is at her chilly best, and the youngsters who play her spooked and spooky children, Alakina Mann and James Bentley, are excellent. Amenabar is a bracing filmmaker, but the "surprise" ending of the film is a bit of a letdown. You may come out thinking, that was it? — M. Pols. (PG-13: thematic elements and frightening moments.) 1 hour, 38 minutes. B

"PLANET OF THE APES": Director Tim Burton's version of Pierre Boulle's classic sci-fi novel is unusually beautiful and filled with spooky visual qualities. If this movie needed to be remade — and you could argue it didn't — Burton, with his impish imagination, was the man for the job. Mark Wahlberg makes a sturdy astronaut, Helena Bonham Carter a fetching ape. Some of the exquisitely made-up creatures are unfortunately hard to tell apart, particularly Michael Clarke Duncan's bad guy Attar and Cary-Hiroyuki Tagawa's good guy Krull. There's a neat trick revealed late in the game involving the apes' origins, but the final moments, while true to Boulle's dark vision, make irritatingly little sense. — M. Pols. (PG-13: action violence.) 1 hour, 59 minutes. B-

"THE PRINCESS DIARIES": G-rated movies are a rarity these days, so perhaps we should be grateful for director Garry Marshall's cheery family comedy. It's a variation on the "Pretty Woman" theme, with the charming Anne Hathaway in the Julia Roberts role. She's a (not very) ugly duckling who discovers she's actually a princess from a small European country. Granny/queen Julie Andrews administers the makeover. Hector Elizondo offers snippets of wisdom. A vapid pleasure, but don't bother unless you have kids. — M. Pols. (G) 1 hour, 1 hour, 55 minutes. B-

"RAT RACE": The funniest movie of the summer finally arrives! Taking its cue from the madcap movies of the mid-'60s such as "It's a Mad, Mad, Mad, Mad World," this ensemble cast comedy is broad slapstick at its best as a group of colorful characters race to get $2 million in cash, stored in a locker. The script is clever and the cast is great, including Whoopi Goldberg, Rowan Atkinson, Jon Lovitz and Cuba Gooding Jr. — M. Pols. (PG-13: sexual references, crude humor, partial nudity, language.) 1 hour, 52 minutes. A-

"ROCK STAR": Mark Walhberg goes "Boogie Nights"-lite as Pittsburgh boy Chris Cole, ponytailed copy machine repairman by day, shaggy frontman for a "tribute" heavy metal band by night Booted by irked bandmates for his zealotry, Cole gets to be the lead singer for his metal gods, Steel Dragon. Inspired by the true-life metamorphosis of Judas Priest singer Tim Owens, this '80s flashback is so predictable, you can guess the plot twists as easily as the words of a new song on a Top 40 radio station. it's an energetic fairy tale played for laughs before it takes its soft-core tour of the music world. Tune into VH1's "Behind the Music" for grittier stuff. The original music is girded with 21st-century sensibilities so as not to conflict with the '80s Top 40 modern-rock soundtrack. Look for rocker cameos, and stay for the outtakes. — V. Chan. (R: language, sexuality and some drug content.) 1 hour, 47 minutes. B

"RUSH HOUR 2": Peppy, unpretentious fun with a paper-thin plot. It's a rush job of a sequel. Jackie Chan and Chris Tucker are back, chasing bad guys through Hong Kong, L.A. and Las Vegas, cracking jokes all the way. Some of them fall flat, but there are still many good chuckles here. Chan, more comfortable with English now, is a gem, but director Brett Ratner blows the buzz by showing us a series of outtakes at the end that are far funnier than anything we've seen to date. — M. Pols. (PG-13: action violence, language and some sexual material.) 1 hour, 29 minutes. C+

"SEXY BEAST": First-time feature director Jonathan Glazer's zingy movie, about a retired mobster (Ray Winstone) whose terrifying former colleague (Ben Kingsley) wants him to do just one more job, is remarkable mostly for Kingsley's astonishing performance. Seeing Gandhi play someone as scary as any of Robert De Niro's darker characters is quite a charge. You start out thinking it's a parody, but by the end you're just as desperate as the retired mobster to be free of him. — M. Pols. (R: sexual encounters, extreme violence, language.) 1 hour, 28 minutes. B+

"TOGETHER": A relaxed, intimate, wonderfully clear-eyed and altogether charming Swedish comedy of manners that deals with the accident-waiting-to-happen phenomenon known as communal living. The time and place is 1975 in Stockholm, and the eight adults who make up the commune and go through various problems are well-drawn and acted in this accomplished film from writer/director Lukas Moodysson. — K. Turan. (R: nudity/sexuality and language.) 1 hour, 46 minutes. B

"TORTILLA SOUP": Inspired by Ang Lee's "Eat Drink Man Woman," this film is set in L.A., where a widowed father and master chef (Hector Elizondo) is raising three daughters. As in Lee's film, most of the critical moments seem to occur in the kitchen or at the dinner table, and food is the center of life and culture. The cast, including Raquel Welch, Elizabeth Peña and Jacqueline Obradors, is affecting and convincing. But the real star of the movie is the food, which is certain to make you hungry. — T. Maurstad. (PG-13: language, sexual situations.) 1 hour, 43 minutes. B

"TWO CAN PLAY THAT GAME": More of a commercial than an actual movie, this romantic comedy about a woman (Vivica A. Fox) who schemes to tame her man (Morris Chestnut) after he messes around takes product placement to a newfound high (or is that low?). Granted, the characters are ad execs, but these promotions are so glaring, you almost forget how bad the actual movie is. There are few funny moments here in a story that's mostly repetitive and annoying. — C. Lemire. (R: language, including sexual dialogue.) 1 hour, 30 minutes. D

"ZOOLANDER": The concept of Ben Stiller as Derek Zoolander, a preening IQ-challenged male model, is very funny for about 10 minutes, and mildly funny for another 10. After that, the joke circles around on itself like a dog chasing its tail. The scene-stealing Owen Wilson, as Zoolander's rival, the blonde hippie Hansel, is the best thing about the film. — M. Pols. (PG-13 for sexual content and drug references.) 1 hour, 29 minutes. C

well-known aloofness, go back to my days working as a newswriter in the mid-1990s at KTVU-TV's studios in Jack London Square. Brown, who for some reason did his "We the People" radio show from a studio at Channel 2, would occasionally materialize in the KTVU newsroom before appearing on a live shot for CNN or some such.

The drill was always the same: Brown would sit at the desk, absent-mindedly flipping through the Wall Street Journal, rarely looking up and seldom talking to anyone. This lack of personal warmth did not exactly endear him to the KTVU staff.

On tonight's show, many of Brown's opponents, including Oakland schools chief Dennis Chaconas, are also interviewed. But an overall impression is left with the viewer that Brown has decisively directed the city's resurgence, headed it in the right direction, and has used the revived downtown as the nucleus for all this. Oakland, with so many underappreciated assets, finally has the leadership it deserves.

I predicted here when he was elected that Brown would be a bust as Oakland's mayor. I was wrong. And does anyone (besides a San Franciscan) seriously believe Willie Brown would have done a better job as mayor of Oakland than Jerry Brown has?

Not So Entertaining:

There's nothing quite like an old-fashioned national disaster to (finally) put people's priorities straight.

As Ty Burr of Entertainment Weekly puts it so well, "Seriously, would you ever, EVER want to watch things blow up for the fun of it again?'

Doonesbury's Gary Trudeau scrapped a bunch of future strips to start a post-terrorist storyline reflecting this more serious national bent, with starlet Boopsie exclaiming, "I just don't care what Madonna had for breakfast any more."

Out of the New York/Washington tragedy comes more good news: Reality shows, of late the scourge of television, have dropped off in the ratings. CBS says "Survivor III," premiering next month, will be immune to this phenomenon, but I wouldn't be so sure. NBC's "Lost" hasn't found an audience, post-World Trade Center, and was bisected.

It's hard to believe people find actual reality more important than the ersatz, Hollywood-manufactured variety, isn't it?

The shelving of body-count films like Arnold Schwarzenegger's about-to-be-released latest epic, "Collateral Damage," are one silver lining in our national tragedy.

It's going to take some adjustment now to sit in a theater and actually hear the dialogue without explosions going off in the next theatre, but we'll manage somehow.

Our new priorities will also take their toll on other kinds of popular entertainment, fortunately: Salon.com's Jennifer Howze notes of HBO's libidinous and trashy "Sex and The City," "Could that flitty lifestyle possibly be more irrelevant?"

Plus, newspaper circulation is up. It's almost as if we're now living in an upside-down universe, in which popular values are reversed. Let's see how long it lasts.

But for now, anyway, in this stressful time, I'll take all the good news I can get.

alogue, musing, rambling, inevitably self-indulgent — given the playwright's own description of the process: "There was never a concept nor even a desire to write a play ... The play emerged one night suddenly as text in the form of dialogue." As such, "Approach" will probably inspire as many interpretations as audience members it attracts to this well-staged, but elusive work.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF: MERCEDES DAVIS AKA MERCEDES DAVIS LYLES AKA MERCEDES MINNEWEATHER DAVIS CASE NO. P01-01464

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both of MERCEDES DAVIS AKA MERCEDES DAVIS LYLES AKA MERCEDES MINNEWEATHER DAVIS

A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by COMMEOLLA DIANE THIERRY in the Superior Court of California, County of CONTRA COSTA

THE PETITION FOR PROBATE requests that COMMEOLLA DIANE THIERRY be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent

THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining Court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A HEARING on the petition will be held on 10/30/01 at 9:00 AM in Dept. 61 located at 725 COURT STREET MARTINEZ, CA 94553

IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the deceased, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within four months from the date of first issuance of letters as provided in Probate Code section 9100. The time for filing claims will not expire before four months from the hearing date noticed above.

YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an Inventory and appraisal of estate assets of or any petition or account as provided in Probate Code Section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

TOYOTA AVALON XLS comes with alloy wheels standard and provides a smooth, quiet ride from its V-6 engine. It can be configured to seat five or six.

Toyota Avalon: big, plush American cruiser for seniors

TOM HAGIN
Solo Road Test

PACHECO AUTOMOTIVE NEWS SERVICE

The Toyota Avalon is that company's full-sized traditional American-style boulevard cruiser. It's available as the well equipped XL and as our tester for the week, the topline Avalon XLS.

Outside: Avalon was restyled in 2000, bringing a freshened look that included a steeper windshield angle, rounded A-pillars and recessed wiper blades. Although it carries the same wheelbase, track and overall length as the older model, the differences are easier to see than to measure.

New jeweled headlights have a unique shape that features a step-down look where the hood's cut-line begins, and the wide grille conveys somewhat of a happy face smile.

The flat sides of the car from the bottom of the doors up are broken by a sharp crease extending from nose-to-tail. The resulting attention to detail brought with it better aerodynamic efficiency and less wind noise, while alloy wheels come standard on XLS models.

Inside: Avalon can be fitted to seat five or six passengers, depending on the configuration. The new dimensions provide more than an inch of extra width for more shoulder room and an extra inch of roof height, which allowed the seats to be raised for increased visibility.

Three across in back is no problem, but three across in front is a pinch.

The retro instrument panel is placed four inches farther away from the driver than the old model and is now more user friendly.

Toyota added extra undercoating and special rocker panel insulation to quiet the ride, while the multi-function information display features warning lamps, odometer, trip meter, clock and outside temperature functions.

XLS models add a compass, fuel economy readings, average speed and other functions. Other standard XLS features include fog lamps, power windows, outside mirrors, door locks and front seats, cruise control, an auto-dimming inside mirror, a 120 watt AM/FM/cassette/CD stereo, variable speed intermittent wipers, keyless entry and dual-zone climate control.

On the Road: Avalon's mission is to provide smooth, quiet, unobtrusive power in a multi-passenger cruiser.

It utilizes the 3.0-liter V-6 engine from the Lexus ES300, with 210 horsepower and 220 pound-feet of torque

THIS 1970 BMW 2800CS was purchased new, driven more than 200,000 miles and then restored — all by the same owner.

Washington, DC, area beckoned in 1984. He drove it daily until 1978, when he bought another car for daily use.

During his days in Colorado and Chicago Sprague discovered a great truism: "It's very bad in snow." He ran the BMW until well after 200,000 miles had been recorded. Then the odometer broke.

During that time the car was repainted twice, the upper end on the engine overhauled and a new clutch installed. The handsome interior was also reupholstered in the same leather and fabric as new.

The roof was supported by exceedingly slender A and C pillars. The flow-through ventilation system exhausted cabin air through a port in the C pillar, but the port was virtually invisible because of the BMW emblem positioned over it.

Those gracefully slender roof supports are what eventually doomed the car because it could not meet safety rollover standards imposed by the United States.

When the driver settles into the snug bucket seat and notices in the rosewood-trimmed dashboard the 150 mph speedometer next to the tachometer with a red line at 6,200 rpm., he is aware that this BMW is built as much for go as it is for show.

Sprague can attest to a recorded speed of 128 mph. Front disc brakes and drum brakes at the rear can bring the car to a smooth and steady halt.

The car, built on a 103-inch wheelbase, draws its dynamic attractiveness from the fact that it is about three and a half times as long as it is tall.

The racy silhouette is 53 inches high while the bumper-to-bumper length is 15 feet, 3-1/2 inches. Helping to lower the car are the 195/70 R14-inch tires.

Typical of the era in which the BMW was built, the bumpers are fitted with rubber inserts. Above the front bumper is the BMW twin grille and above that, the long hood, adorned with 21 chrome-tipped louvers on each side of the center line.

Although the cabin is snug, the designers made the most of every square centimeter of space. Knobs to operate the wing vents are virtually flush with the door panels. The top of the dashboard is shaped to form a tray of sorts.

Nice touches like that are to be found throughout the BMW, which Sprague restored in 1998. Since restoration, his car can still deliver fuel economy ratings in the mid-20s mpg range, not bad for a car with nearly 250,000 miles under its valve cover.

Although the BMW was out of commission for quite some time, Sprague found he was right at home in the familiar cockpit when restoration was complete.

What is the recommended time for changing radiator and heater hoses?

PACHECO AUTOMOTIVE NEWS SERVICE

BOB HAGIN
Questions and Answers

Q How often should radiator hoses and heater hoses be replaced?

Do you recommend replacing these hoses with original equipment from the dealer or after-market hoses from auto accessory stores?

B.K., Virginia Beach, Va.

A In most cases, there's no set time or mileage on coolant hose replacement.

Twenty years ago, a common recommendation was to change all the hoses that coolant runs through every 60,000 miles but over the years, advances have been made in the makeup of the hoses themselves as well as the chemical composition of coolants (antifreeze).

Now most owner's manuals don't give a hard number of miles or the amount of time that should pass before hoses should be replaced but 60,000 to 100,000 miles is a figure that's used a lot. But I've seen them go lots further without a problem.

Although some antifreezes are advertised as never needing replacement, it's best to change it every two or three years just to keep an eye on the condition of the engine's coolant hoses.

I usually pinch radiator hoses to feel if they're getting brittle inside and twist the ends of heater hoses to see if they're fragile enough to break off.

All the hoses should be replaced whenever the radiator is taken out for repair or replacement and the entire system should be low-pressure flushed (including the heater core) to get rid of the old coolant.

In older cars, this could present a problem in that the heater cores are sometimes in as bad shape as the radiator.

As long as the radiator hoses are cataloged for your particular vehicle and have the correct curves and bends built into them, it doesn't make much difference if they're original equipment or after-market parts.

Q I have been in the habit of leaving my automatic transmission in overdrive except when driving up or down steep grades.

I was under the impression that this would be less of a stress on my transmission than continuously switching in and out of overdrive.

I believe this because on a different car I once had a transmission wear out prematurely when I used to switch in and out of overdrive. But a transmission shop recently told me that this would cause my overdrive to wear out prematurely.

Also I was told that I should switch from the factory recommended 5-30 weight engine oil to 10-30-weight oil as my mileage approaches 100,000.

Could you verify if what I have been told is correct and if so, why?

S.F., Livermore, Calif.

A I know of very few drivers who continually shift manually between direct drive and overdrive in everyday driving. Modern automatics are sophisticated enough to shift down and up by themselves as the engine load dictates.

Unfortunately, some brands of vehicles are prone to blow transmissions without help from their owners. One reader complained of going through three in his new domestic van before it hit 40,000 miles.

Occasionally in the mountains of Northern California I shift into D (direct) on a very long uphill grade, but that's it. My feeling on changing to a different viscosity oil is that it can't hurt anything and it will probably make you feel better.

Q What really happens to a vehicle if someone rams a potato up a tailpipe? Will it damage the muffler? Will it cause exhaust leaks inside the cab?

Fortunately no one has ever tried to clog my tailpipe with a rag or a vegetable. Is it really a big deal or just a prank?

D.W., Eugene, Ore.

A One of two things happen when an exhaust system becomes plugged solid.

If the car is new and everything is tight, the engine slows down and stops since no fresh fuel can get into the cylinders.

If the system is higher mileage, the exhaust pressure builds up to a point where it finds a corrosion-weakened seam in the muffler, catalytic converter or exhaust pipe and blows it out.

I've seen catalytic converters that have blown off the vehicle when they were poisoned with leaded gasoline.

Q Our '98 Ford Windstar makes a squeaking sound whenever I stop or start. It seems to be coming from the interior but I can duplicate it when the van isn't moving.

D.S Tampa, Fla.

A Ford says there's too much clearance between the seat track and the bolts that hold it. Ford's Seat Track Repair Kit will fix it but the company won't do it on a warranty, hidden or otherwise.

nology includes a continuously variable valve timing system that uses the car's central computer to optimize fuel mileage and provide as much power as possible throughout the engine's rpm range.

In addition, an electronically controlled engine mount keeps vibration to a minimum.

A four-speed automatic transmission is standard, while its optional vehicle skid control system helps Avalon drivers maintain control in adverse conditions by automatically engaging braking where it's needed.

Behind the Wheel: The new Avalon chassis is now 22 percent stiffer in certain places than its predecessor and this brings with it surprisingly brisk chassis response for such a large car.

The front suspension uses relatively traditional MacPherson struts while the rear uses an independent dual-link setup. Both ends use gas shocks, coil springs and a stabilizer bar.

The ride is whisper-quiet inside, and the handling is precise, so the Avalon is a versatile performer. It's easy to prod the all season tires into protest in heavy turns.

It uses power-assisted rack-and-pinion steering that feels overly light, but once settled in, the light feel is welcomed.

Braking is handled by vented discs up front and solid discs in back, backed by a standard anti-lock braking system and an optional brake assisting system that applies extra brake line pressure automatically during what its computer perceives as a panic stop.

Safety: Dual front and side-impact airbags, ABS and side-impact door beams are standard. Vehicle skid control, brake assisting and traction control are optional.

Options: XLS Leather Package (heated seats, leather upholstery, memory seating functions, 16-inch alloy wheels, premium stereo), $1,985; power moon roof, $900; VSC, $650; special paint, $220; carpet/cargo mat set, $179.

GMC truck line is 90 years old

PACHECO AUTOMOTIVE NEWS SERVICE

BOB HAGIN

Not long ago I made what some readers considered a gaff in one of my features and as usual, a couple of sharp-eyed auto aficionados picked up on it immediately.

I stated that as far as I knew, GMC, the truck- building arm of General Motors, never built a passenger car.

These critics pointed out that the GMC Sprint was built from '71 until '79 and its successor, the Cabrillo, was produced from '78 until '87, and both were comfortable highway cruisers, albeit with large trunks.

And they're right — in a way. The vehicles in question were, in effect, Chevy Chevelle and Malibu station wagons with their tops chopped off at the beltline from behind the front doors, and a cargo-carrying section put in its place.

But I will stand firm and point out that Uncle Sam, the entity that has the absolute final word on such matters, says that if it's designed to carry cargo, it's a truck.

This question started me thinking about the background and history of GMC trucks and how it has managed to outlive so many of its competitors in the truck-making business.

As a brand, it's 90 years old this year, an unusual feat of longevity in the century-long battle for survival in a very cutthroat automotive world.

Like so many other self-propelled vehicles, the first trucks were simply motorized horse-drawn wagons.

In 1902, the brothers Max and Morris Grabowsky opened the Rapid Motor Vehicle Company in Detroit to produce copies of a one cylinder, chain-driven dray machine they'd designed and built the year before.

It's name, Rapid, alluded to the fact that the hulking brute could be coaxed to a speed of almost 10 miles per hour but it took a brave man to do it, perched, as he was, up high and forward of the truck bed.

During that same year, the Reliance Motor Company, also of Detroit, ostensibly gave up the production of its five-seater, side-entrance tonneau for the less-crowded field of truck making.

Both companies flourished. Rapid in particular was a great success and by 1906, its new factory in Pontiac, Mich., was the world's largest truck-building plant. It produced only 200 units that first year, since oat-burning horse power was still the preferred motivation source for practicing teamsters, but it was still the largest.

The first years of the new century was a period of corporate conglomeration and the irrepressible William C. Durant was putting together his embryonic General Motors organization.

Durant had started with Buick (skating originator David Buick out the back door along the way), added Oldsmobile and Oakland (the predecessor of the Pontiac) and was in the process of enveloping Cadillac when it occurred to him that he needed a truck line to round out his vehicular menagerie.

Since there were two truck makers in the neighborhood and he couldn't make up his mind which showed the most promise, he bought both of them, Reliance in 1908 and Rapid a year later.

Durant and his General Motors Company marketed the brands separately for a while but in 1913, the two were merged and that same year the organization was renamed the General Motors Truck Company. All production was shifted over to the Rapid plant in Pontiac.

Both the Reliance and the Rapid were big gas-powered [illegible] to replace wagons drawn of horses (hence the [illegible] title "teamster" for a truck but light-duty delivery [illegible] done by GMC electric [illegible]

The Hummer H1 is the biggest and the baddest SU

PACHECO AUTOMOTIVE NEWS SERVICE

MATT & BOB HAGIN
Generation Gap

Bob: At one time a decade ago, the military HMMVEE was the most televised wheeled vehicle on the tube. It was the star of the Desert Storm war with Iraq.

This huge, ugly machine appeared as a rocket launcher platform, an ambulance, a personnel carrier and whatever else needed to be done.

This kind of exposure guaranteed the success of the civilian version, the Hummer H1. It's more civilized than its camouflaged stable mate, but not so much that it loses its macho image. And image is what the Hummer H1 is all about.

At a bit over 7 feet wide and nearly 16 feet long, it's a hard vehicle to ignore in commuter traffic. It's as aerodynamic as a box car and just about as easy to parallel-park. And, at 75 inches, it may not be the tallest on the SUV market, but it's up there somewhere.

Matt: Our Hummer H1 wasn't the kind of vehicle that lent itself to bringing it home for a week of grocery-shopping or taking to the movies, but it's surprisingly nimble for such a big machine.

It has four-wheel drive as well as four-wheel independent suspension and the brake discs are tucked inboard next to the front and rear differentials out of harm's way.

The acceleration can best be described as leisurely due to its 7,000 pounds of weight, but nobody in their right mind is going to drag race a Hummer H1. The engine is a turbocharged 6.6-liter diesel V-8 that only puts out 195 horsepower but the torque is up there at 430 pound-feet at only 1,800 rpm.

It's strictly a commercial unit with a single cam-in-block system operating pushrods and two valves per cylinder. It's a GM design, but it's built by AM General in it's own engine building plant.

GM owns a large percentage of AM General, has exclusive use of the Hummer name and does all the promotions for it.

Bob: Unlike its military cohort, the Hummer H1 only comes in two body styles, the enclosed wagon and the open top. Both of them have four doors, and that's convenient since this gargantuan machine only seats four people including the driver.

Although the engine is cast iron, the body is made out of aluminum. The box-section frame has five cross members and is as sturdy as a bridge.

It has an interesting accessory in the form of a central tire inflation system that allows the driver to deflate the tires if it's going through deep sand and then reinflate them when it hits a hard surface road.

The open top model is more on the order of a sedan with its roof removed since it has four full-sized doors and a tonneau cover that can be snapped into place when it rains.

Matt: AM General only builds the two body styles, but since the Hummer H1 has become in with celebrities and high profile sports figures, several customizer shops have sprung up to make Hummer H1s that are faster, more powerful and much more luxurious than when it rolled off the assembly line.

And if a buyer really wants to show off, he or she can buy a stretch limousine version with all the gauche trimming that go along with that type of vehicle.

Owning a Hummer H1 is sort of a clubby experience and buyers can learn how to drive them on a private 350-acre off-road training area near South Bend, Ind. Most of the time the students are pros like firefighters or salespeople for Hummer dealers, but every year there's a couple of dozen owners who pony up the tuition fee to learn just how tough their Hummer H1s are.

Bob: The fuel mileage isn't really all that great for a diesel engine but it had great range since it has a 42-gallon fuel capacity, including a 17-gallon auxiliary unit.

Matt: General Motors is expanding on the Hummer mystique, Dad, and it's bringing out the Hummer H2 which looks like the big job but it's actually mounted on a Chevy truck chassis. Maybe when the H2 gets into the press pool we can take one out for a week-long full test.

Bob: I'll let you handle that one, Matt. I think our days of four-wheeling around are over for your mother and me.

Bob and Matt Hagin are a father-son team who compare cars based on their generational differences. They write for Pachecho Automotive News Service in Concord. Their column will appear weekly in Auto Plus.

Olds Aurora challenges the entry-level luxury cars

PACHECO AUTOMOTIVE NEWS SERVICE

BRENDAN & MIKELE HAGIN
Gender Gap

Mikele: I don't think that we've ever evaluated an Oldsmobile since we've been writing this column, and now the marque is being eliminated by General Motors.

Going through your Dad's car library, I found a book on the history of Oldsmobile and I was surprised to learn that it's more than 100 years old — the oldest make in this country. It doesn't seem right that our oldest automaker is being dropped in '03.

Brendan: Which points up the fact that we should enjoy this Olds Aurora while we can, Mikele. It's as close as GM has ever come to challenging imported sports sedans in the areas of handling and performance.

It's been around since 1994 and it's undergone some changes over the years that have made it more conservative.

That befits a car that's considered something of an entry-level luxury car. We were lucky enough to draw one that carried a 4.0-liter V-8 engine rather than the alternate V-6. The V-8 has a very nice rap to its exhaust and it has the acceleration to go along with it.

It's a pretty advanced all-aluminum unit that carries dual-overhead cams that work four valves per cylinder. It puts out 250 horses and gets pretty good fuel mileage at 18 around town 28 on the highway.

Mikele: Oldsmobile has been one of the ongoing favorites in my family for a long time and one of my grandmothers has owned a couple of them.

The new Aurora is something of a cookie-cutter car but I like its low-nose, high-tail profile that's accented by a sharp crease that runs from its headlights to the trunk lid.

I don't know if the low, narrow bulge lines that run the length of the doors on both sides are to strengthen the sheet metal or to esthetically break up the slab-sided look, but I find it a little disconcerting. It takes away from what would otherwise be a very taut and purposeful look.

The two separate air intake holes in the nose are nontraditional but Oldsmobile hasn't got a traditional grille to try to work into the design. The styling was completely new last year, which means it will be a while before it looks dated.

Brendan: You sure see a lot more in a car's design than I do. I simply would have said that I like its shape and especially the almost full-circle wheel cutouts.

The interior of the Aurora is a little placid for my taste but there's plenty of adjustment in the driver's seat and the tilt steering so I can stretch out and get comfortable.

The driver's and front passenger's seats have a kind of enclosed cockpit feeling rather than a single front seating area that's separated by a console. It's really more sports car-like than a family sedan.

The front seats are heated, although the weather has been so warm lately, we didn't get a chance to try them.

And since it didn't rain either, we didn't get a chance to utilize the traction control system but I did appreciate its stability control unit that came into play when I tried some spirited driving in the hills above town.

Mikele: You didn't tell me about that but I appreciate you not getting spirited when I'm driving with you. There was plenty of trunk space in the Aurora unlike some of its competitors in the low-end of the luxury car niche.

I like the fact that the lift-over ledge of the trunk was low enough that I didn't have to wrestle bags of groceries over it when I went shopping.

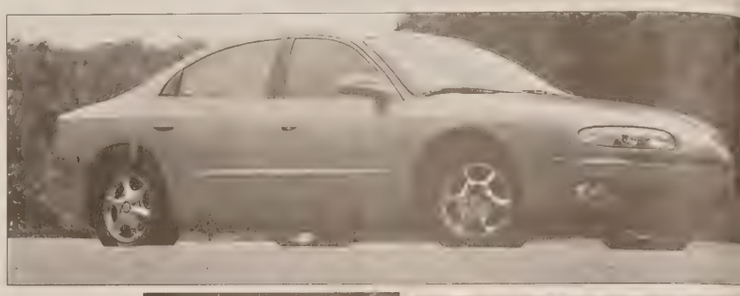

Just for fun, I got into the back seat to see how it felt and I was a little disappointed. It's very soft to me, which is just a matter of taste, but it's also pretty low.

I'm fairly tall, so I can see well from the back seat, but my little grandmother would have trouble seeing much of the view if we took her for a drive.

Brendan: There's an optional navigational radio system available on the Aurora, but ours didn't have it. It comes with a pair of CD-ROMs, one that has all the major highways and roads throughout the country and another that's specific to the owner's area.

Once you punch in an address, the system tells you where to turn and if you make a wrong turn, it tell you how to get back on track.

Mikele: That beats a glovebox road map, Bren. I can never get those darn things folded correctly after the first time I use one.

GENERAL MOTORS/OLDSMOBILE

THE 2002 Olds Aurora is more like a sports car inside rather than a family sedan. Its styling was redesigned last year so it won't look dated for awhile, but the brand itself is being phased out after 100 years.

Brendan and Mikele Hagin are a husband and wife team who write from a gender perspective for Pacheco Automotive News Service in Concord. Their column will appear weekly in the Auto Plus section.

Contra Costa Newspapers/ Hills Newspapers
In cooperation with animal rescue groups advises advertisers to always ask an adoption fee for animals. Giving away pets for "Free" can put them in danger "Free" pets can easily end up being abused. No amount of screening can prevent this Also it is a good idea when possible to obtain the new owner's full name full address & phone number For more information, contact Tony LaRussa's Animal Rescue Foundation at 925-256-1ARF or your local pet adoption agency.

THE TENET DIFFERENCE

"Compassionate" is the best way to describe our hospital's staff. That is the reputation we strive for at Doctors Medical Center. Where a hug from a co-worker or a kind word from a supervisor set the tone for how we deal with our patients. These are just little things that can make all the difference in your day — and your career. Work with DMC, and feel the difference yourself.
